

The editor of this paper has a bone to pick with one of the young men of the village and if he will do him the favor to come to our office any time after dark we will administer to him a good spanking. Now just suppose what he did. He done gone and got married to one of our young ladies of the town and never came around with the stogies or even let us know what he had perpetrated and the result was that not a word was had in our last issue annent the happy event. Following is a copy clipped from the Jamestown Alert which was the first intimation we had that the young couple were married: "A marriage license was issued by the county judge to two youthful residents of Courtenay, J. A. Crawford and Bertha E. Jones, who were married Tuesday. The ceremony was solemnized at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wold, Main street, who acted as witnesses. Rev: Simon officiated. After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Crawford left for their home on Mr. Crawford's farm north of Courtenay. The bride is but 16, and the groom 22."
