

Christ Nelson, who lives north of town, was taken to the Lutheran hospital in La Crosse, Wis., yesterday morning, suffering from a bad case of rheumatism. He was confined to the same hospital for a long time and returned home only a few months ago entirely cured, but a cold and several other troubles led to a return of the affliction, necessitating a return to the hospital. Mr. Nelson certainly has more than the usual share of trouble. After being incapacitated from manual work for over a year he had the misfortune a week or so ago to get one of his fingers badly lacerated which will require amputation to effect a permanent cure. Added to this, the return of his old trouble makes it doubly hard and the sympathy of his friends and neighbors goes out to him and they hope for a complete recovery from his afflictions.
