

Mr. and Mrs Earl Derrickson left last week for Redding, Iowa, their old home. They will go to Tarkio, Missouri, the first of the year where Mr. Derrickson will enter college and take a commercial course. A couple of years ago he had part of his hand shot off and since that time has suffered a good deal and at one time it was thought that he would lose his arm, but the doctors have advised him that if he would go to a warmer climate and take up some line of business he might avoid this operation. He owns a half section of land north of Medina but cannot farm it and his brother here will look after it for him.
