

John Kolstrom narrowly escaped serious injury on Wednesday while working in Dave Anderson's blacksmith shop. He was finishing a plow share on the emory wheel when in some way the wheel caught the share and hurled it into his face, inflicting an ugly gash in his nose and also cutting his left arm. It is fortunate for John that he was not more seriously injured.