

---

We had another serious break-down last Friday just after our forms were on the press and our eastern readers had to go without the Courier last week. We know now why it was that Sam Sansburn did not fix up the break in his usual workmanlike manner. It was because a bright eyed little daughter had put in her appearance at his home last Friday, and Sam was naturally a little bit rattled.

---