Carl Linderfelt, of Milwaukee, is visiting with his uncle Mr. R. C. Cooper. Carl met with a novel experience Thursday. He went into a corral with his uncle and was immediately chased by a wild cow. Carl made a dive for the fence and succeeded in getting over that all right, but he did not stop to look what was on the other side of the fence and fell headfirst into a tank of water. He was fished out of the tank and is now wondering what kind of cows his uncle keeps anyway.
