

known and probably never will be. The machine was running and five or six hundred bushels of grain had been threshed out that morning. We are told that the pump had just been started when the engine blew up. Boiler Inspector Critchfield took possession of the steam and water gauges and will test them, we are informed.

It was a sad accident and one that will not be forgotten here for a long time to come. All the injured are young men, well known and highly respected. Only one, Ed Thompson, is married, he having a wife and several children. That all may speedily recover is the expressed wish of every one in the community.—Sanborn Enterprise.
