

WEDDING BELLS.

Mr. Andrew Sinclair and Miss Florence M. Haskell were married at Jamestown last Wednesday evening, August 5th, 1896, by Rev. C. H. Phillips, of the Congregational church. The young people had kept their intentions so quiet that very few persons knew that they had gone away to get married. The bride is the third daughter of Captain and Mrs. A. Haskell, and has grown up in Cooperstown from childhood. She has been prominent in all social gatherings and is an earnest worker in the "Y" organization of which she is a member, and is popular with all her acquaintances. Besides being socially a success, she is a model housekeeper. The bridegroom is county superintendent of schools of Griggs county, and is also engaged in farming. He is energetic and upright and is possessed of the many good qualities which makes a person respected by all who know him. The young couple will for the present, until they get a house in town, live on Mr. Sinclair's farm, thirteen miles southwest of Cooperstown. The numerous friends of this young couple unite with the Courier in wishing them a happy and prosperous married life.
