

Magnus Greenland purchased a nice new Stormer bicycle a few days ago which seems to have aroused the envy of somebody who knew a good wheel when they saw it, because on Tuesday morning when Magnus went down to the store his bicycle was non est—in other words it had been stolen. Just how the burglar gained access to the store is still a mystery. The back door was unbolted but nothing on the door was broken and just how the party or parties sprung that bolt deponent knoweth not. Nothing has been missed from the store but the bicycle and it is evident somebody wanted to leave the country and wanted the wheel as a means of locomotion. Magnus traced the wheel into Courtenay and then lost track of it. It is not probable that the wheel will be recovered.
