

Frank Kelly met with a misfortune Monday that will retire him from active labor for some time. He was riding on top of a water tank. The hose was slipping down and he reached over to pull it back when the horses shied and he was thrown to the ground dislocating his shoulder. The tank containing several barrels of water passed over his legs and body, but did no serious hurt. Dr. Brimi set the shoulder and Frank will sit around and talk politics.