

School Lyceum.

The school in sub-district No. 2, Lincoln township, has an enrollment of fourteen, and although the weather has been very severe of late, yet during the very coldest days all have been present. Among the large scholars in attendance are Dolphus Vadne and Carrie Williams, who are just making each day "count" in their laudible efforts to obtain a better education.

On Wednesday evening of this week, the first meeting of the lyceum connected with the school was held. The question debated was, "Which is preferable, an education without money, or money without an education." After an interesting discussion, the question was decided in favor of education. Then followed recitations, singing, readings and a spicy local paper, "The Lincoln Zephyr," read by the editor, Miss Carrie Williams. The pleasant and profitable performances closed with a spelling contest. Several parents came with their children and seemed to enjoy the exercises. This was one of the best features in an educational point of view, for parents little realize what encouragement they may give by their presence in any profitable gatherings where their children take a part.
