

---

The very high winds which prevailed on Friday and Saturday have doubtless done a good deal of damage. In many fields the wheat has been entirely uncovered and in some instances they have been reseeded and in others reharrowed. In some places on summer fallow, where the land was finely pulverized and the wheat up, the dirt has been blown away from the root leaving it exposed.

---