

---

—Hans Gilbertson, a Norwegian boy living northwest of this place, fell from the platform of a threshing machine while in motion, on Saturday last, striking some of the machinery and sustaining fatal injuries. He was brought to town Sunday, and Dr. Kermott was called, who did all that was possible for him, but finding that medical aid was of no avail his parents removed him back to their home on Tuesday, where death put an end to his terrible sufferings on Wednesday evening.