

Charlemagne Tower, who, during his life made many charitable donations to Tower City, and after whom the town was named, died at his residence in Waterville, New York, last week, at the age of 81 years.