Drank Gasoline

Little Carol Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Schmidt, drank a quantity of gasoline Wednesday, which came near causing her death. The children were playing around the engine where they were threshing, and discovered a can of gasoline from which the little one drank a quantity in some manner. The men were having trouble with the machinery, so did not observe what the children were doing. When discovered the little one was lying on the ground unconscious and so strangulated that her face had turned black. She was hurried to the house and Mrs. E. D. Stewart, a trained nurse, was summoned, who gave first aid until a doctor could be secured.

The little girl was in a very dangerous condition for some time, not recovering consciousness for several hours, but with special care and medical attention she is recovering from the effect of the poison.
