

Orion Rhodes has set up a wind driven electric light plant at his home in the north part of town. Instead of a windmill wheel he is using an aeroplane propeller, which, with the necessary gearing, is mounted on one of his aerial towers. The current is produced by a Ford generator. Orion expects to use the outfit to charge batteries and light his buildings.