

The new bell for the Methodist church was hung in the belfry Saturday under the supervision of John Urban. It is rather a novelty to see it in place after the building has stood all these years without one.