

While playing with a coffee can Wednesday, Master Gerald Thorson fell and cut the palm of his hand on it, an artery being severed. He was taken to a doctor at Cooperstown where the wound was dressed, six stitches being necessary to close the wound. There was considerable loss of blood and for several hours he was very weak. He is doing nicely now, however.

---