

R. C. Wagoner was severely scalded on his wrist and neck last Friday by steam from an overheated radiator. He was removing a blanket from the car, and in so doing, touched the hinged cap which flew open under the pressure of the boiling water which shot upward as he was standing over it.