

Mrs. Hopland of Dover township, a daughter of the late Iver Skaar, was frightened from her home Monday by a masked man who ordered her to leave the house with threats of bodily injury if she failed to do so. She and her husband are working for Ted Williams, and at the time she was alone with her baby. She left the house without securing wraps of any kind and ran some distance when she was discovered and cared for, as both were very cold and exhausted. The sheriff was called Tuesday morning, but so far no clue to the perpetrator has been found.
