
Martin Jacobson, who returned last week from France, came to Sutton from Mose to on his friends and acquaintances. Martin just missed getting into the big scrap, as the armistice was signed as his company reached the front. He had a chance to see some of the devastation that was wrought by the Huns and to hear the big guns roar. He brought back a number of souvenirs, two of them being a helmet worn by the allies, and a gas mask.

Da
Inne
day
neigh
been after
pho
aged secti
Han
near stor
in w

Ma