

John Peters was the victim of a very agreeable surprise Friday night on account of it being his birthday. A friend of his at Revere Mr. Haue, and Roy Milender's were promoters of the surprise, which was given at the former's home. There were about thirty-five present, and the folks passed away the time dancing to music on the guitar, mandolin and accordion. The usual good supper was served, and John was presented with a number of gifts as a mark of friendship. By the way, John never told us how old he is now.
