

Orion Rhodes has recently been trying out a racer which he constructed, with an old Ford engine as the starting point. He figures that when the car is in proper running shape he can make 80 miles an hour with it.