

Arthur Simenson arrived home Saturday with an honorable discharge from the army, and spent a few days visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Simenson. While he did not reach France he came so near doing so that his division was loaded and ready to sail when the armistice was signed. However they had a short ocean trip anyway as they were taken from New York by boat to Newport News. One of the commanders he was under was General Bundy, at one time a lieutenant in the standing army, and under whom Art's father served when he was doing military duty in the 80's. Arthur has now gone to Minot to establish his headquarters as division superintendent for the DeLaval cream separator company.
