

LEAL LOCALS.

Frank DeWalt is now with the Eastern Elevator Co.

Is this Indian summer or squaw winter? It makes a feller think of his overcoat, if he has one.

Perry Pickett who is teaching at Fingal, this term season, has been home visiting his parents.

Lewis Peterson is the name of the new man at the Olson elevator and he hails from Sanborn.

The Misses Amy and Hattie Reynolds have returned east, after a pleasant sojourn with their parents here.

Joe Law who has been in the machine department of the Lundy salesroom has discontinued service there and is with Mr. Wilson the balance of the season.

Ike Marsh started out bran spanking new this week Tuesday with a Port Huron outfit, which he purchased of the agent here, Fred Smith.

Geo. Tilton of Minnesota, who has come to the harvest fields of Dakota for the last past 15 years and who acts as foreman for Harry Green is here again this season. Wheat would never get shocked on that farm if George didn't come out from Minnesota.

As one passes by a cemetery and notices a tomb stone, finished and polished on the front side and uncut and unpolished on the other three sides, it reminds us of the exemplification of many men's lives, when death overtakes them; a life on the first quarter, finished, educated and polished and at seventy five, no advancement, and three quarters of the life unfinished and incomplete.

A harvest hand employed at Chas. Talsteads, and while working for a neighbor, Mr. Anderson, was killed here last Saturday, under very sad circumstances. The team on the bundle wagon, started to run away and the driver attempted at getting hold of the lines to check them, and was pitched forward to the ground, the wheel passing over his head and he only lived twenty minutes. We are not able at this time to learn his name but his home was in Duluth.
