

Old Timer Dead

WAS WELL KNOWN THROUGHOUT

R. L. Walters one of the early residents of the county, near Edmunds, is dead. The end came at the farm home, where he was in failing health for many months. For some weeks in the winter he was in a hospital at Jamestown, in a serious condition, but he rallied and longed to be home, where he was taken, and where he passed his last hours with his family about him.

Mr. Walters, with his family, came to this county and settled a few miles northeast of Edmunds in 1882. Mr. Walters was well known here, he having campaigned on several occasions. He served in the 1911 session of the legislature and was also one of the candidates for the 1913 session, being beaten by a small majority.
