

Leaving Courtenay

Dr. Rasmusson and family, who came here about two years ago, have decided to leave here, and will locate at Center, Oliver County, in the western part of the state.

The doctor was out there about ten days ago and found the best of encouragement from the people, they being anxious to have him locate there, and at the meeting of the board of commissioners held in Center, last Monday, he was appointed county superintendent of health, which carries a good salary with it.

We have found the doctor and wife very congenial people, and are sorry to have them leave, but we are always glad to have our friends go where they can better themselves. Center will gain a family that will prove worthy in helping the town, and a town of the size of Center, is fortunate in getting a doctor of his ability.

The doctor expects to leave the first of the coming week for Center. His wife expects to visit here and at her home in Kathryn before going to her new home.

We wish them the best of luck in their new place.
