

Twin City tractors, will burn either gasoline or kerosene. Built in two sizes, 25 and 40 tractor power. S. O. Satre, located in the old M. J. O'Connor, paint shop, Courtenay, N. D.

The county treasury has been enriched some $37,000 by the annual tax of the Northern Pacific railway which has been received by Treasurer Ford and which will help to keep the wolf away from the county flour barrel for some days.—Jamestown Capital.

Owing to our hardships in getting moved we neglected to announce that Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Weinkauff are the proud parents of a new boy which made his appearance in this world March 9, weighing 12 pounds. S. N. still wears the broad smile. He says the boy will be a big help to him this summer on the farm.

Sandy Satre has received a car load of farm machinery for his machinery business which he is about to enter into at this place. Mr. Satre says that he will be able to sell farm machinery at the lowest price ever sold at this place. He wishes to have all farmers in need of machinery to call and see him before going elsewhere. In another part of the paper will be found an ad pertaining to the line he carries.

The old M. J. O'Connor paint shop has been leased by Sandy Satre and Will Moulder, who are putting the same in shape for the opening of a machinery business. They also expect to do all kinds of boiler and other repairing. They now have a car of machinery on track.

The latest Pitner lighting system has just been installed in the new home of the Courtenay Gazette by the state representative, Bert Stoddard, and it is one of the best gasoline lighting system on the market. Mr. Stoddard has numerous calls for this "king of a light," and from the present indications he will be kept busy supplying the demand this year.

The most heard of question around here is: "Have you heard anything more about the new Midland railroad?" It is beginning to take on the appearance of a huge joke with some of us. Well, probably they need more time to decide whether Courtenay or Wimbledon is the spot. We are all anxiously waiting for that final decision, which has been forthcoming for some time.

Chairman Harry Tucker has called a meeting for March 27th of the Progressive Republican League at the Gardner Hotel in Fargo. It is said that plans will