The following conversation was over-heard after the Geometry quiz last week:

Carl H.: Did you get all the questions in the test?

Don S.: Oh yes. I got the questions, but it was the answers that bothered me.

WANTED: More gum, by Dorothy Angus and Oma Isackson.

WANTED: A Baby Ben, by M. S.

LOST: A heart. Finder please return to Donelda Armstrong.

Teacher (in English class): Leonard, where ARE you reading?

Leonard (quite innocently): In the book.

Teacher (in Physical Geography class): Dorothy, tell us please, what keeps the moon in place and prevents it from falling.

Dorothy S: I suppose it's the beams.

LOST: Two buttons from a good pair of black brogues. Finder please return same and claim reward. John Edward Paul.
