

OYEN BROS. CLOSE DEAL FOR STORE

Aarestad Bros. & Troseth Sell Hardware Store to Carl and Henry Oyen

Last week a deal was completed whereby the hardware firm of Aarestad Bros. & Troseth disposed of all their remaining interests in that business to Carl and Henry Oyen, who will in the near future take up their residence here and engage in the hardware business.

It is over a year since Aarestad Bros. & Troseth commenced to close out their interests in this village. Their implement business and a large part of their hardware stock, as well as some of their sheds and buildings have been disposed of, and both E. J. and G. M. Aarestad have sold their residences and their families are living in Minneapolis. Until the new owners arrive to take possession the Aarestad Bros. will be in charge.

Carl and Henry Oyen, the new owners, are brothers, and experienced business men. Carl is at present in the employ of the Grace City Hardware & Implement Co., and Henry is now running a Farmers Elevator at Holt, Minn, and has been in the grain buying business for nine years. The older brother, Henry, is married and has a family.

As soon as they conveniently can sever their present connections, the new owners will arrive to take possession of the business here.
