

Iver Aabak, a young man who has been holding down a homestead in Montana, near Soild, was in town Wednesday. He was on his way to Fargo to attend the meeting of the Norwegian "lags" which are being held there. Mr. Aabak spent his leisure hours last winter in writing a novel and had several of the volumes with him for sale. The novel was written in the Norwegian language and was one of considerable merit.