

Alex Campbell was among those whose farm was located in the territory cleaned out by hail this summer. His farm was right in the worst part of the storm, as after the storm had passed, some of his fields were as bare as though they had just been plowed. He will barely have enough feed to carry his stock over till next season. However, he takes his loss philosophically and is looking forward to better returns next years.