

Alfred Hanson stumbled over a piece of board in the yard back of his butcher shop Wednesday, and fell in such a manner that he dislocated the thumb on one hand and drove a nail into the other hand. He was badly handicapped in his work for a few days, but lost no time on his job.