

Sanborn Enterprise: A distressing accident happened Thursday morning in the east end of the Sanborn N. P. railroad yards which cost Martin Nettwood, aged about 30 years, of Kimball Prairie, Minn., one of his legs below the knee. An extra freight, running at a high rate of speed, arrived at Sanborn at 7:15 making fast time to clear the west end grade. The young man wanted to get off at Sanborn and jumped from the side door of a box car. When he struck the ground he missed his footing and rolled partially under the wheels. One leg was completely severed at the calf and the lower part of the limb and foot were crushed to a pulp. The sole of the shoe on the other foot was torn off but the foot was uninjured. Such accidents as the above are very sad and deeply to be deplored, but, just as long as people, and especially young men and boys, disregard the first principle of "safety first" and
