A large crowd attended the motion picture production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" last Thursday evening. There was no music, the pictures were not clear, and only a part of the film was shown. Matt Haugen puts on a better show at all times than was this tented production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Albert Larson, a merchant at Cooperstown, has sent an order to Fargo to J. A. McGovern, manager of the state owned terminal elevators and flour mills, for a carload of flour. The order specifies that the price shall be fixed by the industrial commission at the time of delivery. This marks the first order for North Dakota flour.—Fargo Forum.

Martin Ruud, of Sutton, moved his family to Cooperstown the first of the week, and they will open up the old Andrews Hotel building as a rooming house. Martin has been busy for several days getting the place in readiness, and will be able to handle part of the Griggs County Fair crowd. Mr. Ruud, who was a member of the Sutton Mercantile Co., states that their loss in the recent fire was about $12,000. The old company, as it existed previous to the fire, will not rebuild. —Sentinel-Courier.

The eighth grade graduation exercises took place on Wednesday evening in Jackson's Hall. It had been prettily decorated for the occasion with the class colors, gold and white, potted plants and the back of the stage was banked with green. The class is the largest in the history of the Hannaford Schools and consists of the following members: Dorothy Angus, Minnie Brekke, Carl Brudwick, Leonard Haugen, Carl Haugen, Kermit Isackson, Oma Isackson, Robert Jones, Mary Judge, Kenneth Rosdal, Marjorie Sinclair, Myrtle Westley and Josephine Wilson. Dean Vowels, of Fargo College, gave the address. His theme was education and he also emphasized the fact that so often in life the little things count. The Glee Club rendered several excellent selections. Myrtle Westley rendered a little folk dance in a graceful manner. The diplomas were presented by R. L. Jones, President of the School Board

J. M. Freer returned Saturday from Eugene, Oregon, to spend the fall months in this state. Mr. Freer states that the climate in Oregon is not as extreme as in North Dakota, as last winter during the coldest weather there was hardly half an inch of ice on the water, and during the summer at no time was the weather as hot as he found it on his arrival here. The country in the vicinity of Eugene is a fruit country and at the time he left the peach crop was just being marketed. The fruit yields were all excellent this year but of course the prices of fruit are nothing like they are here some kinds selling for about a fourth of the price he found prevailing here, the difference being due to the difficulty of transporting fruits such great distances without spoiling.
