

The Hannaford Schools opened yesterday with Prof. Frank Chaplain, a graduate of the University of Minnesota, in charge. There was an enrollment of thirty-one in the high schools alone the first day with prospects of a greatly increased attendance later. The entire building has been cleaned and renovated from top to bottom, new desks are being installed in the high school room, and other improvements have been made, making a pleasanter building to work in this year. The principal is assisted by five teachers in the various grades, and everything is favorable to a very successful school year.
