

Rheinhold Peterson had a narrow escape Saturday while running Meley's new Fordson tractor. It seems that while breaking with the hitch changed from its regular position in order to have the plows work more satisfactorily, which placed the load too far back the tractor turned completely over backwards. Mr. Peterson managed however to throw himself partly clear of the overturned engine and escaped with only a few bruises.