

Arthur Simensen was in town over-night Monday enroute from Sutton to Minot where he will have his headquarters as division superintendent for the De Laval cream separator company. As a boy, Art lived for several years here in Hanaford with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Simensen, and he has many friends here who will rejoice with him in the success he is meeting in his work for the De Laval company. Art has just had his honorable discharge from the army where he has served the past few months. He was selected for special training and says that during his comparatively short term in the army he has traveled from New York to San Francisco four times and has been in or through thirty-eight of the states of the union. Part of his division was already on transports and the rest ready to embark when the armistice was signed so Art did not get to France, but enjoyed a sail on the troop ship from New York to Norfolk, Va. He was for some time in a division commanded by General Omar Bundy which is a remarkable co-incidence as Art's father served under the same commander, thirty years ago.
