

Philip Thoreson is now at the United States Army Camp at Camp Mills, New York, but he has no knowledge of whether the next move will be to France or whether they will be assigned to do guard at some place in the United States. Camp Mills is quite an aviation center and there are at times as many as twenty areoplanes in the air at one time, and the buz of their motors can be heard at any time of the day or night.