

Rev. P. A. Thoreson is mourning the loss of a perfectly good hay rack which until a few weeks ago was quietly reposing in the alley near his barn. The rack was not very frequently used but was mighty handy to have on those occasions when it was needed. And besides, the rack was the handiwork of Philip Thoreson and was the last work he did at home before leaving for France. If the rack will be returned to its owner by the present possessor, no charge will be made for its use.
