

Rev. Wilson and his son Wilmer had a narrow escape from what might have proved a serious accident one day last week. They were taking a ladder to the N. P. depot in an automobile when one of the protruding ends of the ladder struck an old lamp post at the end of the platform with the result that both the occupants of the car came near being thrown out. Luckily they were about to stop and were going so slow that the car was brought to a full stop before any damage was done.
