Society in Cooperstown.

Cooperstown, in addition to her great natural advantages, has one which is not often looked for or expected in a frontier town. I refer to that of society. There are a great many, and in fact I may say that all the best people come from good old New England stock. Those who do not, are from stock that is just as good, generally speaking.

In Cooperstown, a stranger will find a class of people, who for education, thrift, enterprise and generosity, cannot be excelled in the oldest cities of the country. Taking those good qualities just mentioned, and put with them an intellectual air which pervades every nook and corner of the embryo city, a cramped and narrow limits, given over to the passion of money getting, stifling every noble impulse, while Dakota's broad and fertile acres invite their manly effort that will awaken nobler aspirations in their dried and shriveled souls,—if they will continue their self and almost wolfish struggle in the clone-tossed and flooded east, and lay to scorn our unselfish invitation to come and share with us the fatness of this land of corn and wine, we must leave them in their misery, for such people can hardly grow into the new and wholesome western ideal of manhood."

$400,000 has been signed by Senator Sawyer and Mr. McCoy. As near as can be ascertained the assets are in excess of the liabilities to a considerable extent. The creditors seem to realize this, apparently having uneasiness, and feeling that they will be paid in full. It is thought that the liabilities are about $200,000, and the assets $300,000 more. The mill property has been looked upon by the lumbermen as one of the finest in the Northwest, and certainly has advantages and surroundings which would naturally make it such.

Embezzlement in Boston.

Arthur H. Blaney, cashier and head-book-keeper of the Massachusetts Loan and Trust company, has confessed to embezzling $44,000 of the company's funds owing to mining and other stock speculations. The first intimation of anything wrong was on the afternoon of the 18th inst., when it was found that Blaney was $7,000 short in his accounts. His attention being called to the discrepancy, he said he had taken it for temporary use and would restore it the next from these religious observances. The meeting-house was, like most others of that day, painted white, covered with shingles, full of windows, with plain, plastered walls inside; it was cold and dreary in its aspect within and without. It had no window blinds; and as the sun moved round the building in summer the congregation moved about in their pews, to escape from the burning rays. The winters were awful; the thermometer often fell twenty or thirty degrees below zero. There was no fireplace or furnace, not even a stove. To this arctic temperature we were exposed two hours in the morning and two hours in the afternoon. The sermon was almost always an hour long, and the prayers and psalms, and reading of the scriptures, occupied about the same time. In my whole life I have never suffered so much from cold. My mother always took a foot-stove with her; and it was more frequently under my feet than hers. In the sleigh on our way to meeting we were always comfortable, for we were enveloped in buffalo-skins. But we BRAISED TONGUE.—Wash a fresh beef tongue, and, with a trussing needle, run a strong twine through the roots and end of it, drawing tightly enough to have the end meet the roots; then tie firmly. Cover with boiling water, and boil gently for two hours; then take up and drain. Put six tablespoonfuls of butter in the braising pan, and when hot put in half a small carrot, half a small turnip, and two onions, all cut fine. Cook five minutes, stirring all the time, and then draw to one side. Roll the tongue in flour, and put in the pan. As soon as browned on one side, turn, and brown the other. Add one quart of the water in which it was boiled, a bouquet of sweet herbs, one clove, a small piece of cinnamon and pepper. Cover, and cook two hours in a slow oven, basting often with the gravy in the pan, and salt, pepper and flour. When it has been cooking an hour and a half, add the juice of half a lemon to

A phantom that had retired the night was liable to have his legitimate repose disturbed at any moment by an inconsiderate "summons" of a professional spiritualist in the upper world and could hardly call his soul his own. Everybody knows that the different states of America are allowed to manage all their local affairs and to levy taxes just as suits themselves, so long as the measures do not conflict with the constitution or with special laws passed by the supreme legislature. By the Maine Liquor Law, for example, anybody in that particular division of the country who desires to partake of the flow of the bowl has the trouble of going just across the border to gratify his propensities. It is almost needless to say that the same of Maine has a geographical fringe of most flourishing liquid bars. Its boundaries on the north are beer taverns, on the south are whiskey saloons, its inhabitants are supposed to enjoy a good deal of domestic tipping on the sly, on the same principle by which
