A Word to Settlers.

Under this heading a contemporary administers a few pounds of wholesome advice to people who want to get on too fast. It points out the certain rewards of pluck and patience and perseverance, and admonishes the farmer that he must be more content to labor and wait in order to reach the rewards which Dakota has in store for every class of industry. The subject is one which calls for some attention. No man coming to Dakota, relying upon his industry of success, and putting that industry into motion fails to prosper. But success is so easily attained that some people are led into the belief that it is to be obtained without an effort, or without being deserved. People who come here from the east to share in our prosperity will do well to remember that greenbacks do not grow on cornstalks, any more than figs do on thistles, and that the man who starts in to cultivate the soil of Dakota with a shotgun is not only liable, but tolerably certain, to get left. Thrift, industry, sobriety and honesty are all the capital the Dakota settler wants, and if he has these he will find his reward in his crop of No. 1 Hard. If he have them not a war footing of Remington rifles, or a pedigree to reach from here to Fargo will not place him any nearer financial salvation than a copy of Bob Ingersoll's religious tracts.

on why I should go back. I never have & Langlie's. seen a day when I ever thought of such a thing and have yet to hear the first see the "Monitor" at Whidden Bros." person say they have any desire to leave here and return to the States. To be proof and on real estate. sure, we have a new country and it necessarily has some of the disadvantages of den Bros. a new country, but I have found them very few in comparison to Racine county when I first came there. We have a railroad running directly to us and bringing us all the facilities necessary to the pursuit of any business. It was not so when I first came to Racine county. Here all God's broad acres are ready for the plow and there has never been a failure of a fair crop. Wheat, the great that choice candy at Whidden Bros.' staple of Dakota, is a sure crop and always abundant. The inhabitdnts are room from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. Tickets intelligent and industrious and strictly mind their own business. The most of them are Americans. There is, however, a large class of Norwegians, but they are of the very best. Three of our principal merchant firms are Norwegians, also the Clerk of the Court, sheriff, county trersurer and several of the lawyers, and more noble and intelligent men never lived. There is once in a while one seen just over from the old country with their little short jackets with its forty rows of buttons and forty buttons in a row, but they are what Du Chaillu describes them "au bonest and industrious people." There are a few Germans and as far as I have seen a good class of people. And what I never saw or heard of on God's green Earth-not a Jew.

Now surrounded as I am by good, honest, God fearing people, and in a country as glorious as the bright sun of Heaven ever shone upon, why in thunder Lumber Co. should I want to go back to a country of cyclones and frost bitten corn? None of your "carry me back to old Virginia" for me.

I should be glad to visit my children and old friends at a future and proper time, but till then "Dakota is my home."
Mr. Editor give my kind regards to old friends and accept the same for yourself.

Years Payments II.

Very Respectfully. G. F. NEWELL.

A Word to Young Men.

In every town in the Northwest which has had a few years growth may be found young men occupying leading positions as merchants, bankers, lawyers, editors, doctors, etc., who, when they emigrated from their old homes, brought no capital with them. These men have prospered by applying their energy and intelligence to the favorable they would probably have worked all ity, keeping on its crest, to reach success.

Of course, such men are no dawdlers or visionaries. They have pluck and force. But the point we want to make is that with all their good qualities, if they had staid in the east, where competion is keen, opportunities few, and desirable places well-filled and firmly have been against them. Every step forward would have been at the cost of years of effort. In the West, where value is put into the virgin soil by first occupancy, the first industries and business enterprises spring up every day, there are so many avenues opened to Bros.' make money and secure independance, that a sober, earnest man, be he ever so poor at the start, can hardly fail to prosper.—The Northwest.

The London Times is supporting the project for a men orial to the inventor of illuminating gas, William Murdock. It is related of him that when he was making his experiments with fish-skins to be used by brewers as a substitute for isinglass, he went to London and took expensive lodgings at the West End. Absorbed in his new discovery, he used to go out with a fish basket, which he brought home full of fish; then he would flay the fish on his drawing-room table, and hang the skins to dry on velvet sofae and silk curtains. When his landlady caught him at work there was a scene and Murdock, much to the surprise of his simple mind, was ignominiously ejected, after being made to pay damages. The Murdock memor al committee which is to be formed under Sir William Sieman's auspices, will endeavor to collect funds for erecting a statue on the Tnames embankment, and also for purchasing Murdock's house at Handsworth, which it is proposed to convert into a gas museum, with a library and reading-rooms, for the workingmen of Birmingham.

The World's Coldest Places.

From the London Pall Mall Gazette.

The coldest place on the earth is not as The coldest place on the earth is not as has hitherto been believed by meteorologist's, Yakutsk, in Siberia, tut Verkoyansk, in the same region, lying it 67 1-2 degrees north latitude, on the river Yana. Its lowest mean winter temperature is 48.6 degrees below zero contigrade. This then, is the cold pole of the earth in Asia. The corresponding polein America being to the north west of the Parry Islands; and the line ad-joining these two places does not pass through the North Pole itself, which is thus, in all probability, outside the line of greatest cold. It is noteworthy that Verkoyansk, like Yakutsk, is on the moinland, a considerable distance from the Siberian coast, which possesses a comparatively milder climate. The recent Schwatka milder climate. Franklin search expedition, however, found that in the neighborhood of the back river the mean winter temperature is not far behind that of Verkovansk; of course, the minime of both places reach a much lower figure. It is well known that in the tropics, on the other hand, the greatest heat is not at the equator, but at some distance north and south of it.

LATE MARKET REPORT.

ST. PAIL.

WHEAT—As before said, the board of trade demand was slow at the close of the week. Early it opened active for hard varieties, with buyers biding up and advancing prices, apparently independently of the lake markets, though these had some effect in afterward causing an ensier feeling. There is a good milling demand, and a liberal through shimment trade. Among millers the feeling seems to be steadler than with the large shippers, who just now are offish. Latest reports quoted lower prices in the lake markets, causing duliness here. On Tuesday on 'change the market rued dull, but at an advance of 1c on hard variedes for the entire week. Receipts have been liberal throughout and generally of good quality. Street wheat is still quotable at 87@92c rer bu. Closing quotations on 'change weak at the following prices: No. 1 hard, $1.03 spot and October: November and December, $1.02; No. 1, 93c; No. 2, 880—all bids.

DAKOTA NEWS NOTES.

Dakota Agricultural Reports.

The following is the report for September to the United States commissioner of agriculture James Baynes, United States agricultural statistician of gress during the month of September with their work, and generally with results fully meeting the farmer's expectations. The grain threshed before passing through the sweating process was rather unsatisfactory to the farmers, when attempted to be marketed, as it graded very low. The quality siace is much better, the grade is lower in South Dakota than last year caused by rain while in stock. It is also decreased in some parts of the Territory by reasons of the presence of smut, In the north central the drought affected the crops thaterially and decreased the yield nearly one-half, notably in Day and Brown counties. The acreage in wheat, where the assessor's returns show it, increases the earlier estimation. The average yield for the territory as appears by returns is 16 3-4 bushels, bailey 26 bushels, oars 46 bushels, bailey 26 bushels, bushels, bailey 26 bushels, bushels, bailey 26 bushels, bushels, bailey 26 the first of the forty-fifth parallel, and two-thirds of it between the forty-fourth and forty-rifth parallel, and injured the corn south of the forty-fourth parallel. In the counties of Union, Clay, Yankton and Bon Homme it is the most important crop.

The Wahpeton Times says as large as English and French Women.

The French are very fond of deerying the women of our country as a flatchested, long membered, large-footed race, awkward in gait, ill-dressed or over-dressed, unlearned in the elementary rules of that important matter, the dressing of the hair, and incapable of hardressing of the hair, and incapable of harmonizing colors, says a writer in the London Standard. These criticisms are ill-natured and exaggerated, but nevertheless a good many grains of truth underhe them. Take a London and a Parisian shop-girl as an example. The former has generally the advantage over the latter in clearness of complexion and in complexes, yet she loses by the and in comliness, yet she loses by the comparison. She is neither so becomingly dressed nor so careful to suit the color of her dress to her complexion, nor so neatly shod; and, above all, she an abundant head of hair affords her as a frame to an attractive youthful countenance. The horrible barbarous fashion of cutting the hair short, which obtains no favor in France, prevails, I observed with real regret, to a considerable extent in London, and when the scissors have not been ruthlessly applied to ma culinge the female head there seems to be a deplorable want of taste displayed in the arrangement of their tresses by London girls. Those I met out, those I saw behind the counter, appeared to have a peculiar penchant for screwing their hair into tight, agly little knots, singularly ungraceful—so I thought, at all events, fresh from the sight of Parisian heads. The appearance of the London nursemaid also contrasted unfavorably with that of the French bonne. I do not reter to the clite of the calling in either country, but to the ordinary middleion of cutting the hair short, which ober to the elite of the calling in either country, but to the ordinary middle-class nurse-girl or bonne, such as one meets with in Ke sington gardens or in the Tuileries. Perhaps the tasty cap worn by the latter, with its meter and a half of broad ribbon streamers behind, gives her an advantage; perhaps she holds nerself better, or pays more attention to her general appearance. Whatever may be the cause, the result undoubtedly is that the eye rests with more pleasure upon a group of French nurses gathered together with their charges in a public garden than upon a similar group in a London park. To sum up my impression concerning London women of the middle or lower classes, they seemed, as a Frenchman would ses, they seemed, as a Frenchman would put it, verues, not habilles—clothed, not dressed.

The result in Ohio seems to have been as much a surprise to the Democrats as to the Republicans. It was a good deal of a "scratch."

Uncle Rufus Hatch intim ates that H. C. FITCH, while he admires a hog, those of English breed who sneaked into his Western excursion party suit him entirely too well.

One of the peculiarities of Butler's speeches to the Massachusetts farmers nowadays is that he dees not refer to politics in them at all. "It is your governor who is speaking to you-not your candidate," he said, in declining to talk politics at a fair.

The result in Iowa is hardly less a surprise than that in Ohio. Two years ago the state was carried by 80,000 Republican majority. This is cut down this year at least 60,000, the Democrats get one congressman, a supreme judge, and the largest legislate representation they have ever had. There is food for reflection in such a change.

Whitelaw Reid has found out the cause of the Republican defeat in Ohio. "The Republicans relied too much upon the good character of the Republican party and the bad character of the Democratic party." The country would sink back again into the gloom of barbarism but for the giant intellect of the successor of Horace Greeley.

Chicago Herald: Ohio Republicans are not showing the part of wisdom in seeking to belittle the significance of the snow squall in that state. The effort to show that it wasn't much of a shower, that it cannot have any bearing upon national politics, and that it is the mere result of a local squabble over temperance and other side issues, sounds too much like whistling in a church-yard. Better come out and acknowledge the corn. It was a defeat-and a defeat, too. which is all the more poignant because it was unexpected. And the Democrats, too, must not crow too much, nor magnify the political importance of their victory. They won when they did not expect to, and snatched success from the very cup of despair. Both sides had better accept the result with as little talk as possible and each seek to profit by the lesson it teaches in numerous directions.

Two men at Miles City, Montana, pretended to have learned by telegraph that the government had thrown open the eastern part of the Fort Keogh reservation to settlers. They whispered this cautiously to special friends, enjoining strict secresy. Before night there was a stampede, the supposed public land claims were staked off, shanties were put up, tents were pitched, and the jokers say that a town was laid out and a real estate "boom" was under full headway before 9 o'clock that evening. But by 10 the joke was out and the place was deserted.

The Sick Man's Triumph.

Hoadley was a sick man, Foraker was well; Both ran for Governor, And this is what befell:

Hondley had to take a rest, Foraker kept the stump, Swearing loudly the while He'd make the sick man hump.

Hoadley got his grip again and took another bout, Foraker lasted just a week, And then was knock-ed out.

Foraker has wiser grown;
"I'll fight no more," says he;
"If I should meet a well man,
What would he do to me?"

What would ne to to me!

Hoadley smiles a blissful smile,
His pills he throws away;
"I'll live," he says, "to down
Another man some day."

THE ENEMY'S FLAG.

What injustice! What insolence! These words were uttered by a levely woman, whose flushed cheek, flashing eye, and knitted brow, spoke even more than the words of the indignation which filled her heart. She was the young wife of Commodore Coe, the commander of the small navy of Montevideo.

The lady was Spanish by birth as well as feelings, and the cause of her anger was the sight of a ship which had been for two days standing off and on before the harbor, using every species of in suit and defiance to induce the vessel of the commodore to come out and fight him.

This the latter could not do for two reasons; the first was illness which confined him to his cot, the second, that he had not one-third of a crew, and not even men enough to man his battery. At the moment when she uttered the words which commence this sketch. Captain Brown, the commander of the Bienos Ayrian ship, had hoisted a flag, whereon was painted in large characters the insulting inscription, "Coe the Coward." This was more than his noble and fiery wife could stand for she well knew her husband's

After gazing for one instant at the flig, she raised her jewelled hand, and taking off a diamond ring of great value, exclaimed to the men who stood around her on the

"I will give this diamond to any man who will bring me yonder flag."

For a moment there was no response.

The men looked at their officers, and officers looked at each other, but volunteers seemed scarce. What! is there no one of all of you who will dare the trial? Is my husband's ship indeed manned with cowards?" exclaimed the lady, her beautiful lips curling with scorn, and her flashing eye gleaming with the fire of contempt.

A young officer, who had been lately ap-pointed, stepped forward, and modestly

"I was only waiting for my seniors to speak, senora. Had any one of them vol-unteered, I should have begged to accom-

As it is, I pledge myself to bring you yonder flag before the sun rises again, or to die. But I ask not your jewel as a prize to my success; one tress of your glossy hair shall be my reward."
"You shall have both, brave boy," replied the lady, and her look of cold scorn changed into a sweet smile as she asked him his

'It is Frank Bennett," replied the youth, and he blushed beneath her earnest gaze. He was slim, but well formed; looked very young, but in his dark blue eye and compressed lip an observer could read the man-among them he said, "I want six men to man the whale boat."

Struck by his gallantry, nearly one-half of the crew started forward. Now that they had a leader, volunteers were plentiful. Bennett glanced his eye over them, and chose six Americans, men whom he knew to be both daring and firm.

"Go sharpen your cutlasses," said he, "l shall not have a pistol or musket on board. If we fight it must be sword to sword, and so we succeed in our object or perish."

The men answered by a look. They were of that class who are of deeds, not words. They hurried below to make their preparations, while some of the crew proded to maffle the oars, arrange gails. &c.

One half hour later the sky was covered with clouds, and darkness had s -t in. Bennet had been careful when light of the day gave opportunity to take the exact position of the enemy 8 ship, which was lying off the shore, and by this alone he hoped to be able to find her.

During this time the lady was on the deck, regarding the arrangements of the little party who were about to push on. At the moment when the boat's crew cried out that all was ready for a start, their young leader approached the senora, and taking from his neck a miniature, he handed it to her with a letter, s ying:

"If I am not on board by sunrise, lady, vou will fulfil a sailor's dying wish if you transmit these to the direction on the let-

The lady looked at the picture, it was the likeness of a young and beautiful girl. A tear started to her eye.

"Ah, forgive me." she exclaimed, "who would, in a moment of passion, have per-illed the life of one who has other duties and ties which bid him live. Your life is precious. I will not expose it."

"This is my only sister, whom I almost adore," interrupted the youth, "but one who would blush for me if I played the coward, and dishonored the name of my brave father. Send the letter, senora, and the likeness, if I fall. Farewell till to-morrow, or forever!"

The lady was about to answer, and again to entreat him to stay, but in an instant he was over the side, and the boat pushed

The night was pitchy dark. A calm was on the sea and in the air, but it was proten-tous of a storm. A small light and compass had been placed in the boat, and by these the young sailor shaped his course.

"Give way, my lads, a long, strong, and steady pull," said he, in a low tone, as he left the ship's side, and he soon felt, by he trembling of the frail boat, that his diections were obeyed. They pulled straight n the direction of the ship and out to sea, regardless of the approaching storm, the oung officer keeping his eye steadily fixed in the compass, until he knew if the vessel emained in the position she was in at sunet, that he must be very near her. Bu e looked in vain to see her dark figure coming up in the gloom. At this moment, when he was completely at a loss which vay to steer, the dark clouds which had been gathering round them burst wi ha vivid flash of lightning, and a peal of deafening thunder. He heard not the thunder, ng thunder. He heard not the thunder, se heeded not the rising storm. That flash if lightning has showed him the vessel at a "Steady, my men, steady," he whispered, when the thunder ceased, "I shall ull directly under her stern."

At this instant, another flash of lightning lluminated the sky and water, and then, as he glanced up where the flag had been hoist-d during the day, he saw that it was no longer there, it had been removed. He paused for a moment to think what was to ne done, and then formed his resolution.

"I shall go on board alone, men," said e. "Keep the boat where she is, exactly. If the flag is where I think it is, in the cap-tain's cabin, I will have it. If I am not back in five minutes, and you should hear iny alarm, make the best of your way to the ship and tell the senora and mates that I died like a man. You must be cautious. Take in the sail, for the storm will be upon is in a few minutes."

These hasty commands were whispe ed to the men, who leant forward in the boat to catch the orders they dared not disobey, much as they wished to share their leader's peril.

Springing lightly from the boat, the young man caught the nettings, which were within reach, and noiselessly ascended to he bulwarks. He could hear the regular tramp of the officer on deck, who, having everything arranged for the coming storm, had but little ective business to occupy him. See him ne count not. of the impenetrable darkness of the night, and the care which was taken to prevent a light being used on the ship that might be the means of betraying the position of the ves-sel to their enemies on shore.

For a second he listened with throbbing heart to the steps as they approached him. The officer turned once more, and in that instant the gallant young sailor was down on the deck and at the cabin door, which stood slightly ajar. He peeped in through the narrow crack, and saw a red-faced old captain seated at his round table with two of his officers by his side, engaged over the contents of various bottles.

A glance at the settee just to the left of this table showed the object of the enter-prise—the flag for which he had perilled his life lay there—where it had been care-lessly thrown over after it was hauled down.

The young officer did not pause long to consider what to do, but quietly walked into the cabin, and, taking off his cap, bowed very politely to the officers, and as he stepped towards the flag, said in a calm and convicers manners to the capital. courteous manner to the captain:

"I have come to borrow this banner, sir, to wear to-morrow, if you have not the slightest objection."

"Who the deuce are you?" "What does this mean?" cried the captain; as no and his officers sprang upon their feet, astonished at the extraordinary proceeding.

"I am an officer, sir, of the vessel which is in yonder harbor," said the young man, who had now seized the flig, "and I mean to carry this to my commodore."

As he said this he bounded to the cabin door, followed closely by a bullet from the captain's pistol, and ere the alarm become general, he stood upon the taffrail of the

"Look out for me below," he shouted, and flung himself into the sea without a moment's hesitation.

"His boat's crew recognized his voice; hood of mind, not years.

The sun was setting behind a bank of slowly rising clouds, which threatened darkness and storm. The moment that his services were accepted, young Bennett services were accepted, young Bennett and the wind began to come in with fitful and fierce gusts.
"Up with the sail; be in a hurry, lads.

cried the young hero, as soon as he could recover his breath after his ducking. The crew promptly obeyed his orders, and the next moment the little boat was flying in towards the harbor before the blast, like a glad sea-bird, winging its way to its nest.

The enemy opened a harmless random fire of grape shot in their direction, but it only serv d to tell the anxious watchers on board their vessel that something had oc curred, and they therefore at once showed lights and enabled the boat to be kept straight for her.

It was about half an hour after the gun had een fired by the ship at sea that the boat of the young adventurer rounded to alongside of his own craft. "Have you captured the flag?" cried the young senora, as Bennett bounded over the kissed him again and again.

Upward of twenty years ago a husbandman, a native of Cumberland, married a girl belonging to the county. The newly married couple went to reside with the bride's friends. The bridegroom, however, could not agree with them, and in the course of a few months he left his wife and went away, no one knew whither. The woman had reason to believe that her busband, after leaving her, took his passage in the ill-fated steamer, London, which in the year 1866 foundered on her veyage to Australia. Seeing in the list of those who perished a name similar to that of her husband, the wo-man concluded that he was dead. Shortly after her husband's departure she gave birth to a daughter, and the two lived together for a long time without any particular incident occurring to change the current of their daily ife. After waiting for many years the woman married a miner residing in a village near Maryport, and the pair have since lived happily together. The daughter of the first kusband is now married, and has gone to Newcastle to reside. A few days ago the first husband made Africa.

his appearance at the residence of a sister in Wigton, and to her he stated that he had been for some time living in Newcastie. He then made inquiries respecting the wife he had left, and was surprised to hear that he had a married daughter living in Newcastle—the very town that he had himself been residing - and that the wife he had deserted was married again. His sister was unable, however, to give him the address of his daughter; and after waiting upon some of his relatives at Maryport—to whom he announced his intention of searching for the daughter he had never seen—he proceeded to the residence of his wife, not far from the town, in or-der to obtain his daughter's uddress. The second husband was not at home when the wanderer made the visit, and the woman was in the house alone. He knocked at the door. When the woman opened it she failed to recognize him and asked him what he wanted. The man asked it she had a daughter alive, and if so, where she was living. The woman wished to know his reason for asking such a question, and inquired if he was any relative of her daughter's husband.
'No," he replied, "I am a nearer relative than that."

The woman then invited h m into the house, and gave him the ai ress, which he put into his pocket and prepared to leave the house. As he was crossing the threshold he turned and, looking her full in the face, said. "Well, Eliza, you have got married aga n, and I hope that you will do well by your husband and live comfortably. I am your daughter's father."

The poor woman knew him then, and almost fainting, cried in a thrilling tone, "Oh, Jim!" but before she could recover her composure he had walked away. He has since left the country.

Wild Animals at Sea.

From the New York Tribune.

The arrival of the Neckar set affoat rumors of the coming of strange and wonderful beasts. Near the main hatch of the steamer was a huge box of curious construction. It was six feet wide and twelve feet high, and the ends were open. The floor was covered with straw and the sides were heavily padded. The box was empty, and two wide-eyed men were regarding it with sad-"He was of fourteen feet the height," said one. "The most superb that ever to America on ship was brought," echoed the other. The box had contained the largest of the eight giraffes taken on board at Breof the eight giraffes taken on board at Breman. It had been placed between decks under the main hatch, so that the animal could thrust his head up, his fourteen feet of height extending nearly to the top of the hatch. But the voyage of the Neckar, which occupied fifteen days, was very rough, there being only two days when the vessel was not rolling violently. The giraffe was so shaken by the motion of the ship that he died from by the motion of the ship that he died from exhaustion the next day before reaching port. Two of his smaller brethern also gave up the ghost, leaving five. Between decks some curious freight was found among the boxes pilead near the main hatch. There was an opening in the end of one box, perhaps five feet high, at which the muzzle of an Indian white ouffalo appeared. Opposite, in a firm cage, strongly fastened down was a white lama. The hue of its shaggy coat belied its name, and the animal wore a sheepish and dejected expression. From the darkness of another box rose the white neck of an ostrich. The attendant seized its bill and the huge bird struggled to its feet, revealing a body covered with black plumage. Near by was its mate. The most remarkable fewls were two rhinecerous birds, of horn birds. An attendant removed a slat in a rough wooden cage standing in the corner and shook his hat in the opening. There instantly darted out a sharp-pointed horny bill of an immense length, which seized the hat. This was attached to a black body with long legs. Then the keeper unlocked a door on the port side of the vessel and a pungent ammoniacal smell became noticeable. Here were five giraffes. They playfully gathered about the visitors and nibbled at their every farming community would be "No, they were not seasick," said the keeper. "But," he continued, "that is what they do all day long, till they get tired—they rock as the ship rolls—but two get thrown down once." In a pen next to the giraffes were three African zebras, dis-tinguished from ordinary cattle by their wide-branching and sharply pointed horns and the large lumps upon their backs These lay down in rough weather, but the giraffes kept on their feet and knocked their heads against the deck above. Their value is estimated at $1,500 enc., exclusive of freight and duties. All these animals came from Carl Hagenbeck, of Hamburg, who is said to be the largest animal dealer in the world. They are to be shipped to Bridgeport at once.

Sandwich Islanders in Swimming.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

Our guide had arranged for an exhibition of the swimming powers of the natives, and upon our arrival we found several men on the side of the fall where we took our stand, while upon the other stood six or seven dusky maidens. The water tumbles over a series of natural bridges commencing high up in the moustain range. The main fall is a sheet about twenty yards wide, and with other smaller streams fulls into a cir-cirlar basin beneath at the debth at least 100 feet. A series of declivities have been cut rude by the natives to a depth of sixty or seventy feet, to enable visitors to witness their watery gambols. Our party was perfectly astonished at the way in which these Kanakas disported themselves in the water. Divested of all clothing, both men and women would dive into the basin or pool to a depth of thirty or forty feet. A coin thrown into water would be brought up with the greatest rapidity. Some of the girls took up a position on a rock which, to judge by eye measurement, was at least sixty feet high, and jumped into the basin with their bodies in a rigid position. Others again ascended to the top of the fall and came down with the water in its descent. No small wonder, indeed, that the Kunakas are able to conquor the sharks, which they do by getting under their belly and ripping it of en.

FIELD AND FARM.

Notes for Farmers.

There are now 900 head of imported cattle at the Boston quarantine grounds, and over 600 more will come this month.

If there is a ything that will arouse a man to renewed action, it is the sight of a production of a neighbor's farm that exceeds in quality that of his own farm. He will endeavor to find out the secret of his success, and if it is because of a better breed of cattle, or better varie-ties of fruits or vegetables, he will be very likely to introduce improved breed or variety upon his own farm. Thus the ...nnual fairs become a direct advantage to the farmer. In a society where there is so much that can be learned, no man can afford to refuse to become a member, and the more active he becomes the more practical knowledge will he he able to pick up. Every good farmer will feel that he ought to devote at least one week in September to agricultural fairs, and he will give his boys as much time as he spends himself.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

The Michigan Farmer gently remarks that "a farmer who has tried the no road-side-fence plan, declares his pious soul to have been greatly vexed because soul to have been greatly vexed because of the trouble and damage caused by any transfer of stock from parts of his own farm, or the passing droves in the highway, and also that in crop rotation the want of a fence compelled him to omit pasturing fields when such forage would have been of great advantage to him. He thinks he cannot coults such him. He thinks he cannot quite spare the fences yet.'

The New York Times says the roofs of barns should be steep, and if of wood the surface either painted or the shingles dipped in lime water, to make them in re durable. Straw and dirt collect under flat-roofed shingles and cause rapid decay.

Western readers, prepare your wheat fields better than ever before and see whether it pays you or not to do so. That the yields of rich western wheat fields should be but from 15 to 20 bushels per acre shows that the preparation is neglected. How much extra labor can you afford to increase the vield 100-fold?

When grown mules are selling at $300 to $400 a pair and sucking mule colts bring $50 to $100, it might be worth while for those who could just as easily rear mules as not and who could keep a few mares as well as many geldings, to bear these figures in mind. Down SHEEP -- Henry Stewart says that the "ups" are now in favor of the "Downs," as that class of sheep with dark faces and medium wool are called, of which the South Downs are the progenitors. These sheep are all excellent. but vary in size, from the smaller South Down to the Shropshire, Oxford and Hampshire breeds. For mutton these breeds are unapproachable, and the wool is of that class known as flannel and clothing wool, the great staple of the manufacturers. But the Merinos have their place as "wool-bearers, from which they can never be pushed, while these Down breeds will be the farmers' sheep for wool, mutton and lambs.

The wheat crop in Kansas is threshing out mush heavier than was expected. and the state board of agriculture now savs that the crop will reach 35,000,000 bushels. The corn crop in Kansas it is estimated will reach fully 200,000,000 bushels and will be the largest ever produced in the state. If the farmers who will keep dogs would get rid of their worthless curs and substitute one well-bred shepherd pup vastly increased in many ways. Farmers soon find the colly saving them many a step. Eager and anxious to learn, willing to do anything within his power, the young dog needs only a wise and patient restraint, and intelligent di-rection, to become the most useful hand on the place. We can readily understand why our neighbor , ho rises at seven in the morning and spends three or four hours of almost every fair day and all of the in the town or village, gossipping or talking politics, does not pros-per at farming, and he does not deserve to succeed.

Sheep prefer upland pastures and a great variety of grasses. It has been proved that the pasture has a greater influence than climate on the fineness of wool. Fat sheep yield heavier and coarser fleeces than those that are pool in flesh. The fine flocks east, when taken to the western prairies in the same atitude, will in a few years change their character. The quantity of fleeces and size of the sheep will increase; but the fleeces of the wool will not be retained sweet or upland herbage is the best for Household Recipes.

NEW METHOD OF PRISERVING.-Beat well together equal quantities of honey and spring water; pour it into an earthen jar; into this put freshly-gathered plums, or peaches, and cover close. This is said to keep them as fresh the year round as if just gathered from the tree. When any of the fruit is taken out, wash it, and it is fit for immediate use.

RIPE TOMATOES.-Tomatoes may be kept almost any length of time and come out as fresh as when first picked by preserving in pure vinegar diluted with water-one gill of vinegar and two of water. Pick when ripe, but not very soft; leave the stems on, but do not break the skin. Put into wood or stone. and put the liquid on them cold. After you get through putting them in, place something on them to keep them unde the liquid, and take out as you may wish to use them. Can use them as you would tomatoes fresh from the vine This will not fail if your vinegar is pure and diluted according to directions. It is nighly probable that cucumbers might be preserved in the same way, selecting CANNING GRAPES.—Concords are best for this purpose. Cook the pulps thoroughly, strain in colander or sieve to remove seeds, then boil the pulp and skin together one-half to three-quarters of an hour, not less, adding sugar to taste. Use ordinary stone jars, filling full; smear the top of the jar with hot wax made of equal parts of rosin and tallow; then stretch over the top new cotton sheeting tying around the jar about an inch or two from the top with a cord wound around several times; then cover the cloth on top with a layer of melled wax, and set in a cool place; will keep until the next summer. For grape jelly the grapes should not be quite ripe.

A very pretty workbox can be made of a square box of cardboard, Line it with blue satin, have the sides covered with the same material, and the lid and foundation of black satin. The lid can be embroidered and fitted with a cushion. The cornflowers are worked in satin stitch with bine silk, the stamen in knotted stitch with yellow, and pointe russe with red. The calices, worked with green silk in satin stitch, are also strapped across with brown silk. The sprays, tendrils, and leaves are worked with olive and brown silks in overcast and satin stitch. The sewing on the cover of the lid is hidden by a leaf-shaped ruching of satin ribbon. A loop of blue satin ribbon is arranged under the lid for the purpose of raising it.

PICKELED PEACHES .- Take six pounds of sugar to one quart of cider vinegar; boil the peaches in this (after running off the fur, or peeling them, (as you perfer) until a broom splint will nearly pierce the skin; stick some cloves into the peaches before putting them into the vinegar and scatter a handful of stick cinnamon over them.

Watering Plants in Sunshine.

A widely accepted but very erroneous belief, which is a cause of much loss during summer heats, is the fear that if plants are watered while the sun shines upon the leaves it will harm them. There may be some tender young leaves of certain delicate and rare plants that would suffer from a sudden wetting of cold water under a blazing sun, but I have not met with such in vegetable culture, and I have long practiced frequent spinkling of ready. quent sprinkling of newly set plants luring hot, dry weather to prevent their beginning to wilt. If allowed to wilt at all it is difficult to revive them. The short or broken roots want little water until their wounds are heated and they become able to collect and send on supplies to the leaves. During this term of trial what is wanted is frequent sprinkling of the leaves to prevent their flagging. A mere sprinkle serves that purpose if often enough given, without drowning the injured roots. Two great advantages are gained by this frequent leaf wetting—four or five times a day in hot, dry weather, during two or three days after transplanting—one that the planting can be done while the ground is dry and pliable when it will not pack, and the other that the leaves can all be left on the plant instead of all being half cut off, as is sommonly done in planting cabbage, celery, etc., to reduce the transpiratory surface until the roots recover. Such cutting in is a great draw back to the plant, and can only be justified when there is no other practical way of saving or continuing its life.— Hortus.

THE FATHER OF FISH CULTURE.

Seth Green's Ideas About the Finny Tribe and Some of His Varied Ex-

(Turf, Field and Farm.)

"How did you ever come to devise this scheme?

"I have been working at it ever since I was large enough to bend a pin."
. The above remark was addressed to Mr. Seth Green, the veteran fish cul-turist, who is known to the entire world, and his reply indicates the extent of his

"When I was quite young," he con-tinued, "I would lie on the limbs of trees that reached out over the water entire aiternoons watching the movements of the fish and studying their habits. In this way I discovered many characteristics which were before unknown. saw, as every observer must see, the destructive elements that are warring against fish, and I realized that unless something were done, the life in the streams of this country would become extinct. To counteract this disastrous end became my life work, and I am happy to say I have seen its accomplishment."

"Were you successful on the start?"

"No, indeed. Up to that time all artificial attempts to hatch and raise fish from the spawn had failed, and I was compelled to experiment in an entirely new manner. The work was a careful and tedious one, but I finally succeeded and to day I am able to hatch and raise fully seventy, five per cent, of all snawn."

"Enormous! Why that is a larger percentage than either the vegetable or animal kingdoms produce in a natural condition." dition.

"I know it, but we exercise the greatest care in the start, and guard the little fellows until they become able to care for themselves."

or themselves."

The foregoing conversation occurred at Caledonia where the representative of this paper was paying a visit to the state fish hatcheries. It has been his privilege to report very many interest-ing sights within the past twenty-five years, but the view presented here ex-ceeds in interest anything ever before attempted.

"How many fish are there in those ponds, Mr. Green?"

"As we have never attempted to count them it will be impossible to say. They extend way up into millions though. We shipped over three millions cut of the pond this year and there seemed to be as many afterward as before. We have nearly every variety of the trout family and many hybrids.

"You speak of hybrids, Mr. Green, What do you mean by that?"

"I have experimented for years in crossing the hyperides of the verious fish and crossing the breed of the various tish and I am still working upon it. We cross the female salmon trout with the male brook trout, and thus produce a hybrid. Then we cross the hybrid with the brook trout, which gives us three-quarter brook trout and one-quarter salmon trout. This makes one of the finest fishes in the world. He has all the habfishes in the world. He has all the habits of the brook trout, lives in both streams and lakes, develops vermilion spots on his sides, rises readily to a fly, is far more vigorous and unly one-third larger than the ordinary brook trout of the same age. The possibilities of development in the fish world are great and we are rapidly ascertaining what they are."

As the man of news watched the countenance of Mr. Green while he was giv-ing the above account, he could not but feel that he was in the presence of one of the ew investigators who, from a rich and life long experience, bring great benefit to the world. Let the reader inagine a strong and stalwart frame, sur-mounted by a head strongly resembling that of Socrates and covered with a write sitky beard and luxuriant gray hair. Seth Green, the father of fish culture, is a pic-ture of health, and the reporter could not belo remarking so.

malaria in its severest form, and when I came home I realized for the first time in my life, that I was sick. My symptoms were terrible. I had dull, aching pains in my head, limbs and around my back. My appetite was wholly gone, and I felt a lack of energy such as I had often heard described but had never experienced. Any one who has ever had a severe attack of malaria can appreciate my condition. I went to bed and re-mained there all the spring, and if there ever was a sick man I was the one.

"It seems hardly possible. How did you come to recover so completly" "My brother, who had been afflicted by a severe kidney trouble and threat-enen with Bright's disease was com-pletely cured by a remedy in which I had great considence. I therefore tried the same remedy for my malaria and am happy to say I am a well man to-day and through the instrumentality of Warner's Safe Care, which! believe to be one of the most valuable of medicines. Indeed, I see it is end-used by the United States medical college of New York, and that Dr. Gunn dean of that institution, has writter a long article concerning its val-they divided.

"Well, we have 43 ponds which are divided up as follows: 22 ponds of brook trout, 2 ponds of salmon trout, 4 of Me-Cloud river or rainbow trout, 2 ponds of German trout, 3 of California mountain trout, 2 ponds of hybrids, 4 of one-quarter salmon and three-quarters brook trout, 2 ponds of gold fish, and 1 pond of carp. Then we have what we call the centennial pond or 'happy family,' consisting of crosses of different fish, inclu-ding Kennebrc salmon, Land Locked salmon, California salmon, brook trout, salmon trout and hybrids. These fish range in size from minnows to 18-pounders, and in age from one and-one-half months coughs, asthus and Bronchitis has been unparabled.

to eleven years. I forgot to say, also, that we have a 'hospital' pond, which is entirely empty, which speaks pretty well for a community of many millions. Indeed the whole secret of fish culture can be summed up in four things. Impregnation,—using no water. Plenty of tood. Plenty of pure water and cleanliness."

The numerous fish exhibitions which

The numerous fish exhibitions which are taking place in all parts of Europe and the unusual interest which is being manifested in this subject throughout the world all owe their origin to the process above described as originated and conducted by Seth Green. It is certainly cause for congratulation to every American that this country produces so many men whose genius brings value to the werld, and it is proof positive of the greatest merit that a remedy even with such high standing as Warner's Safe Cure is known to have should be so strongly endorsed and recommen-ded by one so reputable and reliable as Seth Green.

The Jews in the Holy Land.

The colonization of Jews in the Holy Land is likely to be a dire failure unless r dical measures of relief and reorganization are immediately adopted. Reports have reached England that the Reports have reached England that the coionists at Zimmarin, who are nearly all refugees, are literally dying of hunger, and the colony at Rosh Pinah is in almost equal difficulties. The resources of the Central Committee at Galatz are said to be exhausted, and i is not easy to see how the situation of affairs can be changed unless the rich Jews of Europe and America come to the resure. rope and America come to the rescue.
At Rosh Pinah there is no money to develop the resources of the colony, while at Zimmarin there are more families than the land is capable of supporting. The chief mistake seems to have been in undertaking the coloniza-tion enterprise without sufficient funds to make it feasible. The London Globe goes so far as to say that "the whole project has been so grossly mismanaged that it is time the control of it passed into more capable hands."

Webster's Love for the Old Home. Among the various reminiscences of Daniel Webster, suggested by the centennary of his birth, Jan. 18, is the following extract from Daniel Webster's speech at Saratora the following reference to the hom-of his infancy, which has been pronounced as beautiful a specimen of language as has been written in the English tongue:

"I love to dwell on the tender recollections, the kindred ties, the early affections and the touching narratives and incidents which mingle with all I know of this primitive family abode. I weep to think that none of those who inhabited it are now among the living; and if ever I am ashamed of it, or if I ever fail in affectionate veneration for him who reared it, and defended it against savage violence and destruc ion, cherished all the domestic virtues beneath its roof, and through the fire and blood of a seven years' revolutionary war, shrunk from no danger, no toil, no sacrifice, to serve his country, and to raise children to a condition better than his own, may my name and the name of my posterity be blotted forever from the memory of mankind!"

BAD, BAD, BAD BLOOD.

Some blood is bad because it is poor and weak. Some is bad because it contains impurities. Some men have such bad blood that the wonder is it does not poison the mosquitoes who come to bite them,

The rich red color of good blood is owing to the iron which is present. Blood which has not enough iron in it is always unsatisfactory. The person in whose veins it circulates cannot be said to enjoy good health.

The efforts of expert chemists to produce a preparation of iron which can be assimilated with the blood have resulted in that perfect preparation which is an important part of Brown's Iron Bitters. It is the only one which freely enters into the blood. _ It is the only one which accomplishes the desired good. Weak, poor, thin blood may be made rich and strong, and impure blood may be purified by the use of that Great Iron Medicine, Brown's Iron Bitters.

A rebel 2-cent stamp went through the Richmond postoflice undetected Thursday, and as its color and style is much like the new one, it is feared the old rebel stamps will come out on duty.

Four construction gangs are laying steel rails on the Fargo Southern, and it is now quite certain that the road will be completed by Thanksgiving. This means much to Fargo and North Dakota.

It is reported that the Villard excursion party to the opening, cost the Northern Pacific two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and that employes are to have their salaries curtailed in consequence.

County Treasurer Pease, on his farm of 200 acres south of Sanborn, raised a crop ful account of all expenses and did not do a stroke of work himself. This is pretty good even in Dakota for a "side issue."—Valley City Times.

The long and extensively advertised sale of town lots at La Moure hasturned out a miserable failure. The extra inducements and wide spread advertising convinced thinking people that there was a wooly head in the wood pile, and they sensibly stayed away and let the suckers drink the free wine.—Bismarck Herald.
