COOPERSTOWN, GRIGGS CO., DAY.

The bones of the assassin Guiteau hav been removed from the army medical college museum to the surgeon general's office, where their identity is concealed except from a few officials. The reason is that the curiosity hunters took up so much time of the officials of the medical museum as to interfere with the work.

The lumbermen of the Chippewa. Wiscensin valley, through the plan of pooling their interests, purchased lands at the state land sale at Madison, Wis., by which transaction they are said to have cleared over $50,000. The largest portion of the lands purchased lie in Ashland, Bayfield, Chippewa, Douglas, Lincoln, Price, Sawyer; and Taylor writer in the London Times givesthis as an example o the condition of the Chinese peasant: "A family consisting of eight persons cwnsan acre and a half of land. The land was bought by the grandfather of the present head and has never been subdivided since nor added to. He grows about seventy bushels of rice and thirty five of wheat and some vegetables and cotton besides, worth altogether in money about $50 He has two nephews who work outside and bring home something to help, and in that way they get along, but they are very poor. He and all his neighbors wear native blue cloth, spun and woven in the family by the women from cotton grown by themselves. He never wore foreign cotton. The coat he had on (a well-worr aff ir,) had been made two years previously, and it would last two years more. It served him by night as a coverlet as well as a coat by day.

Statistics just tabulated by railroad commissioners of the several states, show that during the mo th of Augus last, throughout the country, there were 144 railroad accidents, in which forty-two persons were killed and 136 injured; an increase of five accidents, but a decrease of four killed and eighty-six in jured, as compared with August, 1882 The month of August has usually made a very unfavorable showing, and this year is no exception, although there is some improvement over last year. The eight months of the current year to the end of August, show a total of 1,074 accidents, 320 killed and 1,148 injured; a monthly average of 134 accidents, forty killed and 144 injured. August was above the average in the number of accidents, above it also in killed, but slightly below in injured. There were no notable fatal accidents during the

An expanse of water about nine miles in circumference has been utilized for their creation, on which masses of weeds. grasses and acquatic plants grow and become intertwined and entangled. These form the soil as it were on which the cultivation is carried on. They are cur level with the surface of the water, divisions made in them, and then banked over with river mud. This soil is sown with melons and cucumbers, after being prepared in this manner, and a crop raised which is unequalled in any country in quantity and quality. In a good season these melons and cucumbers are sold at the rate of ten or twenty for two cents; in dear seasons they bring two cents apiece. In Mexico floating gar-dens are built upon much the same plan, but are usually devoted to the culture of

A whole series of untucky accidents have lately befallen the Austrian imperal family. Just as the Empress Elizabeth was passing on horse back over a small bridge which spans a torrent in the Styrian Alps, near Murzteg a plank gave way under her horse's hoof. The animal stumbled and threw his rider over his head. On the very same day, at the same hour, Archduke William, brother of Archduke Albert, while superintending the civil exercises at the camp of Bruck, was taken ill, and fell in a dead faint off his horse; and at the same moment the Archduchess Clotinda, wife of Archduke Joseph, who had been visiting a girl's school near Bud .- Pe tsh. having just stepped out of the house, accompanied by the young girls, she heard a frightful noise bebind her. She turned and found that the roof o the school-room had just fallen in. What interpretation will superstitious people place upon these coincidences? One would be that the Archduchess Clotinda this expression of his individual judgment. is luckier than her relations.

It is not yet known how much the new tariff has reduced the revenue During the ninety days ending Sept. 30 there was a falling off from last year's customs receipts $9,447,183, and of internal revenue receipts of $9,373,520 Miscellaneous receipts show a decrease $2,733,512. The gross reduction for the three months has thus been $21,554,216. It is hard to determine what causes share in this result. Stimulated production of articles, lightened of internal evenue taxes, and increased imports, under the lower tariff, would make the reduction less than it was theoretically expected to be. At the same time s large percentage of the receipts in July were from duties on goods that had, been waiting in bond for the new tariff to go into effect. One thing is evident the reduction of duties was far less than was supposed last March in comparison with those in the internal revenue. It seems doubtful if the falling off throughout the rest of the year will be as great as in the first quarter, and if the entire reduction exceeds $60,000,000 it will be quite as much as can be reasonably ex-

A SURPRISING DECISION.

The United States : upreme Coart Pronounces the Civil Rights Act Unconstitutional, DECISION OF THE SUPREME COURT.

WASHINGTON, Oc. 15 .- A most important decision rendered by the supreme court of the United States was that in the five cases commonly known as the civil right cases, which were submitted to the court on printed arguments about a year ago. The titles of these cases and States from which they come are as district of N w York.

No. 1. United States against Murry Stanley, From United States circuit court, district of Kaneas, No. 2. United States against Michael Ryan, From United States circuit court, district of Cali-fornia.

From United States circuit court, district of California.

No. 3. United States against Samuel Nichols.

No. 28. Richard A. Robinson and Wife against The Mi-mphis & Charleston Rairoad Company.
From United States circuit court, district of Tennessee.

These cases were all based on the first and second sections of the civil rights act of 1875, and were respectively prosecutions under that act for not admitting certain colored persons to equal accommodations and privileges in inns or hotels, in railroad cars and in theaters. The defense set up, in every case, the alleged un-constitutionally of the law. The first and second sections of the act, which were parts directly in controversy, are as follows:

ond sections of the act, which were parts directly in controversy, are as follows:

First—All persons within the jurisdiction of the United States shall be entitled to the full and equal enjoyment of accommodations, advantages, fare and privileges at inns, public conveyances on land and water, theaters and other piaces of amusement, subject only to conditions and limitations established by law, and applicable alike to chizens of every race and color, regardless of any previous condition of servitude.

Becond—Any person who violates the first section shall be liable to fortest $500 for each offense, to be recovered in civil action, and also to a penalty of from $500 to $1,000 fine, or imprisonment from thirly days to a year, to be enforced in criminal prosecutions. Exclusive jurisdiction is given to the district and circuit courts of the United States in cases arising under the law. The rights and privileges claimed by, and denied to colored people in these acts, were full and equal accommodations in hotels, in laddes' cars on railroad vasins, and in dress circles in theaters. The court, in a long and carefully-prepared opinion by Justice Bradley, holds:

First—That congress had no constitution lauthority to pass the sections in question, under either the Thirteenth or Fourteenth amendment to the constitution.

Second—That the Fourteenth amendment is pro-

to the constitution.

Second—That the Fourteenth amendment is probibitory upon the States only, and that legislation referred to therein as to be adopted by congress for enforcing that amendment is not direct legislation on a matter respecting which States are prohibited from making or enforcing certain laws ordering certain acts, but is corrective. Logislation necessary or proper for counteracting and redressing the effects of such law or laws that in forbidding States, for example, to deprive any person of their liberty or proper; without due process of law, and giving congress power to enforce prohibition, it was not intended to give congress power to provide due process of law for the protection of life, liberty, and property, which would embrace almost all subjects of legislation, but to provide modes of redress for counteracting the operation and effect of State laws obnoxious to prohibition.

This Late the thickness the state laws obnoxious to the prohibition. prohibition.
Third—That the thirteenth amendment gives

Third—That the thirteenth amendment gives no power to congress to pass the sections referred to because that amendment relates only to slavery and involuntary servitude which it abolished and gives congress power to pass laws for its enforcement. That this power only extends to the subject matter of the amendment itself namely, slavery and involuntary servitude and necessary incidents and consequences those conditions; that it has nothing to do with different races or color, but refers to slavery. The legal equality of different races, and classes of citizens being provided for in the fourteenth amendment, which prohibits States from doing anything to interfere with such equality; that it is no infringement on the thirteenth the fourteenth amendment, which prohibits States from doing anything to interfere with such equality; that it is no infringement on the thirteenth amendment to refuse to any person equal accommodations and orivileges in an inn or piace of public entertainment however it may be a violation of his legal rights; that it imposes upon him no badge of slavery or involuntary servitude, which is simply some sort of subjection of one person to another and incapacity incidental thereto, such as inability to hold property, to make contracts, to be parties in court, e.c., and that if the original civil rights act, which abolished these incapacities, might be supported by the thirteenth amendment, it does not therefore follow that the act of 1875 can be supported by it.

Fourth—That this decision affects only the validity of the law in the Buates, and not in the Territories or District of Columbia, where the legislative power of congress is unlimited, and it does not undertake to decide what congress might or might not do under the power to regulate commerce with foreign natious and amongst the several States, the law not being drawn with any such power.

Fith—That, therefore, it is the opinion of the court that the first and second sections of the act of March 1, 1875, entitled "An act to protect all citizens in their civil and legal rights." are unconstitutional, and judgment should be rendered upon indiciments accordingly.

At the conclusion of the reading of Justice Bradley's opinion, which occupied more than an hour Instituted and

Bradley's opinion, which occupied more than an bour, Justice Harlan said, under ordinary circumstances and in an ordinary case, he should be itate to set up his individual opinion in opposition to that of his eight colleagues, but in view of what he thought the people of this country wished to accomplish, what they tried to accomplish and that they believed they had accomplished by means of this legislation, he must express his dissent from the op nion of the court. He had not had time since hearing that opicion to prepare a state ment of his grounds of dissent, but he should prepare and file one as soon as possible, and in the meautime desired to put upon record

She obeyed, glad of an opper unity to rest her tired limbs. Closing her hands on her lap she looked up into his face trustfully.

"You see," he began' "your mother wan't like me; I mean long ago when I first met her. She was a lady, and I was a groom or servant, on her father's place. She used to ride out every day, and I rode after her to see that no harm came to her. After awhile we grew to be friends; then lovers. She was only a chit of a girl, and when I asked her to run away with me she consented. One night she stole out of her father's house and came to the oak grove where I was waiting for her. I had secured a fleet-footed horse, and when morning dawned we were miles away. We took passage on a steamer bound to America, and were married the day after our arrival. For awhile we were happy enough, although of course we were very poor; but I was young and hopeful and loved my childwife. Gradually she began to pine for her old home. her unhappiness increased mine tenfold.

"At that time I was employed on the docks. One morning while at work a lady, closely veiled, accompanied by a gentleman and a nurse, with a child in her arms, passed me. Something about her figure attracted my attention, and as I turned to look after them I caught a glimpse of the baby's face. I stood for a moment unable to move or speak. Meanwhile they had boarded a steamer that would sail for Liverpool in a few hours. When I recovered my surprize I went as rapidly as possible to the home that had never been a happy one, and learned that my wife and child had gone away in a carriage an hour or two before. Burning with rage and excitement, I hurried back to the vessel, Your mother was on deck talking earnestly to her companion, and the nurse was saying goodby to some friends who had come to see her off. I wasked boldly up to her and inquired the number of her state-room, saying that her mistress had sent me for her shawl. The girl replied that she would go and get it, but I said, pleasantly, 'Talk to your friends while you have time,' Only too glad of an opporantly, Talk to your friends while you have time. Only too glad of an oppor-tunity to have a last word with those she was leaving behind, she told me the number, at the same time charging me to be careful and not awaken the baby. Trembling with excitement I hurried to the state-room, wrapped you in the shawl and walked off the steamer. Have I made the story of my early life clearly to you, Allsie?"

"Yes, papa, I understand it perfectly, and am so sorry for you, poor, dear papa." Then, with a wistful glance in his face. "Do you think mamma cried for me—for her baby?"

"It may be that she did but probably the prospect of being reunited to her family lessened her grief for your loss. Twelve years have passed and I have never seen nor heard from her since. I have heard of her, though, and know have heard of her, though, and know that our marriage was annulled on the ground that she was too young to wed without the consent of her parents, and about seven years ago she became the about seven years ago she became the wife of a man or rank. That was the last news I had of her. I wronged your nother, Allsie, and wronged you in taking you from her. And now, if she will receive you back, I will give you up. But you will not return to her penniless—you will have a fortune of $20,0-0."

Something in his tone touched a chord in her breast that vibrated painfully. She looked earnestly from one to the other, then with a sudden effort recovered her calmness, and said:

"State the nature of your errand sir." He had fancied himself fully prepared for the interview; but finding himself face to face with the woman he had never ceased to love, his courage failed him, and the man who had been knocking around the world for years, whose wealth had made him powerful and self-asserting, grew as embarrassed as a school girl. The fine speeches he had meant to utter were forgotten. Drawing Allsie to his side, he biurted out almost savagely;

Some bours elapsed before Lady Denbeigh was sufficiently composed to listen to a recital of the events that had transpired since Adsie's abduction. Then Mues told ber how he had gone west with the baby, where, after a sharp struggle with poverty, he finally obtained employment, and from that time onward had been what the world terms a successful man. How while amassing wealth he had striven to cultivate his mind. He was now a rich man. The few relatives he had left in his old home were dead, and in the event of his demise Allale would be entirely alone.

His chief reason for seeking Lady Denbeigh was to entreat her to receive the child, and bestow upen her a mother's loving care. He would settle upon her a sum sufficient for all her wasts, so that in a pecuniary sense she would not be a burden.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1883

Some of the aristocratic newspaper organs of Boston are discussing Butler's sanity. The average Beacon Hill mind cannot reconcile opposition to its own theories and notions on any other hy-

Philadelphia Record: Gold has been discovered near Bismarck, in North Dakota, so they say, and the country is excited over it. The farmers better stick to their wheat fields, however. Forty bushels to the acre of No. 1 Hard is better than a gold mine.

Uncle Rufus Hatch now gazes upon the wrecks in Wall street, and the glee with which he utters "I told you so" indicates that he has already forgotten the sore spots in the Yellowstone excursion. Uncle Rufus has probably already recouped his Yellowstone expenses on the bear side of the market.

Speaking of the recent supreme court decision on the civil rights case the Detroit Evening News says: If the negro is to gain a better social position he must win it on his merits, not by an order of court or an act of congress. Congress has done all it can for him. It has placed him upon precisely the same political and civil footing with the white man; it can do no more. The rest he must do for himself.

So contrarily inclined is the human race that when there was a law saying elbow his way where he pleased, Sambo did not care much about these privileges, whereas the whites were, as a race, resolved that he should promptly rights under the act. Now that the law has been wiped from the statute books, the negro is exceedingly anxious to partake of all the luxuries enjoyed by his exclusive white brother, and the latter does not care much if he does, so long as he can pay for them. It is the way of the world. We are all governed too much.—Chicago Herald.

The Special Agent Feature. [Fargo Argus.]

The land department is said to have a corps of detectives going about over the country seeking to ferret out discrepancies between the basis of the allegations of those endeavaring to perfect their title to claims and the laws relating thereto. There may be instances in which frauds and perjuries have been perpetrated in this connection as in other lines, but the law and courts with their regular agents furnish abundant and effective means reaching those liable to punishment. There seems to be a growing disposition among the heads of various departments of the government service to copy the methods of the arbitrary governments across the water, and employ spies and detectives to dog and watch private citizens. The post-office department has gone so far as to invade the supposed sanctity of the mails and intervene moral supervisions of the transaction of individuals. The The land department is said to have a of the transaction of individuals. The department of the interior employs travelers to visit the clains and try to hunt up annoyances and catches for the poor men and women who are endeavoring to make for themselves homes and devel-ope the country. Large discretion is given these agents and probably their given these agents and probably their efficiency is measured to some extent by the number of claimants they report against. If they were not in all cases men of the loftiest integrity it would not be difficult for them to find pretexts to disposses occupants of valuable claims and secure them for personal friends. It is held by the best authorities that the land laws should be construed liberally and with more regard to their spirit than land laws should be construed liberally and with more regard to their spirit than the mere letter. Their design is to develop the country and secure homes for those in need of them. Narrow gauge minds and spies are not in harmony with the genius of the benificent policy of the homestead act. The safeguards of the law are ample, and there is no proper ground for the employment of detectives with roving commissions. While these gentlemen are abroad, every man holds their right to land at their mercy, not to say their whims. There is no security in going ahead and making improvements for they will only stimulate the ments for they will only stimulate the spies to hunt down some unimportant technicality, and either dispossess the honest and rightful claimant, or involve him in a serious annoyance and expense, sometimes causing him to abandon the country in sheer disgust.

Episcopalians of North Dakota are to be congratulated, for in the future they will have a bishop of their own. Dako-ta, north of the 46th parallel, is now a diocese of itself.

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "Already The Pall Mall Gazette says: "Already the articles written about the Northern Pacific and printed in the English papers, if pasted together end on end, would reach the length of the great line itself, and still the cry is, they come. When they will cease no one can say, unless he is able to gage the depth of journalistic gratitude to the sumptious Mecenas of the American rail, and to measure the yearning emptiness of newsmeasure the yearning emptiness of newspaper columns during a parliamentary recess."

A few eastern exchanges chuckle way down to their "foot-slugs" when they relate this: "Dakota has adopted a coat of arms. It represents a man holding four aces and a king; at the right is a horse pistol rampant, while at the left appears a jack rabbit couchant. Below is the Latin motto: 'Nil Straitorum Tolerabit,' which freely translated means 'no straights allowed.' Thus within the compass of an ordinary coat of arms are every industry of this great and growing territory illustrated."

General Lew Wallace.

"Gath" in New York Tribune Speaking of Gen. Lew Wallace, minister to Turkey, Gen. Brady said recently: "He is an able man, though a dramatic one. His appearan e and manginning of the war. He ran away as a boy to the Mexican war, and after that his whole soul was on soldiering and he always had a military company Being the brother-in-law of Henry S. Lane, Morton summoned Wallace to Indianapolis and made him adjutant general. was about the first to come for ward with a con pany from Muncie, and Morton took me right in to see W lines. I shall never forget his expression and gestures. They were those of a born tragedian. He said he wanted my company immediately, and to go right back and get it, as it must go to the delense of the national capital. I hurried back to Muncie and had the town bell rung, and when Wallace started with his men, the Eleventh regiment, for the field, he made a magnificent speech to them before the state house on how Jeff Davis had traduced the Indiana regiment in the Mexican war, and called them to swear with him to avenge the honor of the state against Jeff Davis and his cause. He drew his swori; all the officers drew their swords; the whole regiment kneel-ed with uplifted hands, and it was a thrilling sight, though a little funny to think of after this interval."

A Child Killed by Fright.

From the Arkanses Gazette.

Few people seem to properly estimate the great wrong of frightening children. Nearly every household has its "ugly old man" or its "great old bear." This terrible old man and this great old bear are powerful factors in nursery discipline. "Come along here now," a mother or nurse will say to a child, "and fet me put you to bed." "I don't want to go to bed now," the child replies. "You'd better come on here now or I'll tell that ugly old man to come and take you away. been put in the rag-bag for safe keeping. There he comes now." This has the intended effect, and the child, trembling woman who arose and spoke in the Ful- in fear, submits at once and goes to bed, probably to see in imagination all kinds of herrible faces. The sad death of a little girl, which occurred recently, shows what a strong impression these "bookers" make on the minds of children. The little girl was a beautiful child, and every one at the fashionable boarding house where her parents were spending the summer months loved her with that purity of affection which a child so gentle, yet so strongly inspires. She would stand at the gate and clap her little hands with glee, when her father came to dinner, an ordinary yard and rather like a school and when he would take her off his play-ground, devoid apparently of all shoulder, she would shout and call to every one to look how high she was. One day a large snagzy dog came into the yard and when she ran to him and h. Id a flower to his nose, he growled and turned away. She was terribly frightened, and the black nurse, who stood near, was not slow in making a mental note of the impression the dog had made. Several nights a terwards. when bedtime came, the child was unusually wakeful.

"Yer'd better come heah an, git in dis bed," the nurse commanded.
"I don't want to."

"Come on heah den, an'I won't let him ketch yer.' The poor little thing obeyed. Her father and mother were at an entertainment, and there was no appeal from the negro woman's decision. When morning came the little girl did not awake with her usual "Good mornin", papa and mamma." She had tossed all night and a hot fever had settled upon her. She grew rapidly worse, and the next day the physician declared that there was no hope for her. She became delirious, and struggling, would exclaim: "Dog shan't have mamma's little girl." It was a sorrowing circle that sur-rounded her death-bed. The parents were plunged into a grief which none but the hearts of fathers and mothers can feel. Her last moments were a series of struggles. How hard the beautiful can die! She wildly threw up her little hands and shricked: "Go away, dog!"

A gentle hand wiped the death dew

The Streets of Cairo.

From Revel's Ezypt.

The most populous streets of Cairo are more populous and more crowded than any street in Paris, but their life is of a different kind. There is no regularity in it; in one place the street is blocked up by a group of musicians, around whom a group of idless gather; in an-other a pedd ar attracts the crowd, showing the stuffs which he carries on his shoulders; another man, his fin ercovered with rings for sale, displays them in the eyes of customers. Often we are stopped on our way by flocks of sheep and goats, or camels laden with great stones or beams of timber that we encounter as we pass. The greater part of the passengers in the streets are mounted on conkeys. How often in the streets of Cairo have I seen the well-known picture of the "Flight into Egypt" reproduce! Upon a donkey is a veiled woman, with a child in her arms; by her side a man with white beard, wearing a long robe holding in one hand a stick and re ting the other upon the neck of the heast, to guide and urge him. But there is one point in which the tableaux there is one point in which the tableaux style or writing is also lofty, and for that reason I cau't enjoy his novels. They seem so much stilted to me. He is a first rate soldier. Indeed, he was the military genius of Indiana at the beginning of the war. He ran away as a on foot they generally carry their chil dren astride upon their shoulders, the little creatures leaning with both hands upon the head of its mother. It is a picture less familiar to us than the other, but not less attractive.

The End of the World.

The end of the world is confidently predicted by devout Moslems to be approaching with the close of the Mohammedan thirteenth century on Nov. 8. Fradition declares that in the present month, during the Ramadan fast, the sun shall rise in the west, the day of mercy nd forgiveness shall cease, and that of judgment and retribution begin the orders were given about one-half the company backe out, the captain included, by which means I became the captain and went to the war. A fanatical pilvrim to the prophet's tomb at Medina Mohammed Saleb, de-clares that Mohammed appeared to him in a dream last March, and warned him of the approaching end. There are twenty-five signs to be fulfilled before the Great Day, and some of these the Mohammedians already recognize the closing signs being the coming of Iman Mahdi, the director, with his troops, bearing black ensigns, and a mighty wind which shall sweep away the souls of all who have but a grain of faith in their hearts. After the Mahdi's reign the trumpet will sound two blasts, the dead shall rise and the udgment begin.

FORGOTTEN BURIAL PLACES

Clusters o' Graves in the Heart of New York City-A Surprising Dis-

While roaming among the swarming eastside tenements one night last week, seeking to ferret out the story of a stranger who had drowned himself in the river, a World reporter came upon a curious spot. It was a wide o en space, closed in on three sides by huge tenements and on the fourth by primary school No. 34 First street and stumbling along a narrow ballway and a holl w back-vard, he was confronted suddenly and rather awkwardly by an opening in the rear fence, through which he fell sons he was in search of. It was a wide leve! inclosure many times larger than an ordinary yard and rather like a school trace of vegetation save a withered willow tree in the further corner and a huge clothes post in the center, whence numerous lines ran to windows in the surrounding tenements. The ground seemed littered with cartloads of rusty tin-pans defunct tea-ket-tles and old tomato cans, but from out of the desolation rose two gray shadows and something that in the uncertain moonlight strongly resembled head sto es in a grave encloeure.

Cautiously picking his way among the rubish, the reporter ran his foot against "I don't want to."

"All right den. I'se gwine out and call dat ole dog what growled at yer. When he comes an' fin's yer ou en debed he'll bite yer head off."

The little girl grew deathly pale.

"Nothin' would suit dat dog better den ter git a chance hat yer. 'Tother night he cotch a little girl across de road an' ent her all up."

The child screamed!

"Come on heab den. an'I won't let him"

Two marble slabs still stood in their orignal places, marking forgotten graves. and there were remnants here and there of old inclosures. The wri ing on nearly all of them was chaced by time and weather. The surfaces were rouga to the touch, only one being smooth and seemingly perfect. By the aid of a lighted match the following inscription was made out under two weeping willows graven in the stone:

"Dog shan't have—" but she died ere the sentence was finished.

The New York Mail says that one of the sentence shall be shown the struggled and shrieked:

"Dog shan't have—" but she died ere the sentence was finished. anything ease. The refuse from the surrounding houses, had been thrown upon many of the old graves, until they were covered. A side-long game at another stone showed the half-erased name of Margaret W. Schaefer, 1830. That was all. Her stony, if she had any, was a blank. The names of the others, one and all, had disappeared.

Inquiry developed the fact that the grave-yard belonged to Methodists who built a church two generations ago where the school now stands. The ground had been given to them by two brothers n med Stillwell, and when the church disappeared it remained where it may never be disturbed for want of owners to dispose of it. His interest having been strongly excited, the reporter found a number of like spots scatter d through the city-old burying grounds the names as d original owners of which have been forgotten by the busy world tha lives and moves around them. To sell or dispose of a gravevard does not appear to be an easy matter. The title f each grave being vested in its owners or his heirs in fee simple, the scattering or entire extinction of families inter-teres with the sale of the ground for other purposes. Sometimes survivors are not willing to have the rest of their dead disturbed. Notably is this the case with Hebrews, with whom itamounts to an article of faith. However sharply a Jew may trade with living men, he will not bargain about his father's dust or his grave. Hence there are many old Jewish grave-yards in add places in New York. The public alone, by right of em-inent domain, can acquire the right of way through them.

The old burying ground in the New Bowery, just below Chatham square, and one in west Eleventh street, a hundred feet or two east of Sixth avenue, are instances. Both in their day served as grave yards for the Shearith Israel congregation, the oldest synagogue in the United States, commonly called the Portuguese synagogue, now located in Nineteenth street, near Fifth avenue. After their use was abandoned, streets were cut through them, and the present mel-ancholy remains give no idea of their original form and extent. The New Bowery cemetery was the occasion of a prolonged lawsuit that ended in fixing

There are Jewish burial ton Ferry. There are Jewish burial grounds also in west Twenty-first street, Sixth avenue; in Eighty-seventh street, Sixth avenue; in Eighty-seventh street, between Madison and Fourth avenues, and a small bit on Sixth avenue near Fiftieth street. A plot that covers hardly a single city lot at Fiftieth street and Ninth avenue, and contains only one or two heads to a least of two head-ston s, is said to be also of Hebrew ownership.

The utilitarian spirit of the age has converted some of the gr veyards of old New York, upon which business did not intrude from resting places for the dead, into breathing spaces for the living. The potter's field was once where now is Washington square, and the old Quaker burying-ground behind St. Augustine chapel in Houston street next the Bow-ery, has been made into a handsome lawn that is a God-send to the surrounding tenements. So is the Second avenue part of the Marble cemetery, which one approaches through a spiked iron gate near Second street. Few have any idea that the long lane between the two tall buildings leads to a great burial ground, quite shut out from sight by the houses on Second avenue and the Bowery. Unlike its handsome neighbor around the corner on Second street, which most people take to be all there is of the Mar-le cemetery, it has no fine monuments but there are trees and shrubs. Huge vaults yawn at every step.

HYDROPHOBIA.

Death of a Child in Philadelphis-Strange Developments of the Dreadful Disease.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Wassey Alberson, aged ten, died at his parents' residence. Philadelphia, of hydrephobia. He was badly bitten on the hand October 13th of last year, while playing with a Spitz dog. The wounds were promptly cauterized, the dog was killed, and no symptoms of the distemper s.owed themselves until Wednesday last. He became unusually nervous and showed signs of increased intellectual power. He was unusually bright and talkative, and astonished his parent by the brilliancy of his remarks and his unusual talkativeness. That night at supper be tried to drink his tea, but could not, and subsequently when water was offered him he refused it, and said he could not swallow it. Later that-night water was offere thim again, and he tried to take it, but the effort to swallow threw him into a convusion, during, which he had a sharp barking cough. The physician who was summoned pro-nounced the child's distemper to behydrophobia.

The child could not swallow anything. though consumed by thirst all day Thursday. Thursday night one fit succeeded another until he died. These fits lasted from ten to fixeen minutes, and then aperio i of five or six minutes of compar-a ive rest and quietude came, to be followed by another spasm of intense agony, during which his face was hor-ribly contorted, his hands tightly clenched and his knees drawn up. In fact, every muscle in his body seemed brought into violent action. In the intervals between the convolsions he was sensible and able to tell his feelings. He said he did not dread water because it was water, but because he knew that the muscles of his throat were so contracted and so sore that he could not swallow it without intense agony.

Jilted Japanese Damsels.

The curious hold superstition has on the mind of the Japanese is very well illustrated by the proceedings taken by Japanese damsel when her lover proves false to his vows. When the world is at rest, at two c'clock in the morning, the girl rises. She dons a white robe and high sandals or clogs. Her coif is metal tripod, in which are thrust three candles; around her neck she hangs a mirror, which falls upon her bosom; in her left hand she carries a small straw figure—the effgy of her taithless lover—and in her right she graeps a hammer and nails, with which she fastens the figure to one of the sa-cred trees that surround the shrine, Then she prays for the death of the trai-tor vowing that if her position be heard, she will hers-if pull out the nails which now offend the god by wounding the mystic tree Night after night she comes to the shrine, and each night she strikes in two more nails, actually believing every nail will shorten her lover's life, for she god to save this tree, with surely ttrike him dead.

Petroleum Metors.

Petroleum motors-that is, engines for obtaining motive power from an explosive mixture of gasoline vapor and air-ere now constructed in Germany on a principle which, it would appear realizes effectually some long-sought advantages. The working cy inder is eight inches in diameter, with a fourteen and three sixte nths' inch stroke, and hageneral de ign of the machine is similar to that of certain types of gasengines. The gasoline is led through pipes to the pump cycinder, where it mizes with a definite proportion of atmospheric a'r; and the mixture is then compressed and forced into the working cylinder, where it is ignited by a lamp separately supplied with oit. In the various trials made with this description of engine, the maximum force obtained is given as four and five-tenths' hersepawer, with 130 revolutions per minute; the consumption of spirit, of specifical gravity 0,675, was at the rate of one and three-fourths to two and one-half pints per horse power.

Paper Gas Pipes.

These are made by passing an endless. strip of hemp paper, the width of which equals the length of the tube, through a bath of melted asphalt, and then rolling it tightly and smoothly on a core, to give the required diameter. When the number of layers thus rolled is sufficient to afford the desired thickness, the tube is strongly compressed, the outside sprinkled with fine sand, and the whole outside cooled in water. When cold the core is drawn out, and the inside served with a waterproofing composition. In addition to being absolutely tight and smooth and much cheapar than iron, these pipes have great strength; for when the sides are scarcely three-fifths of an inch thick they will withstand a pressure of more than fitteen atmospheres. If buried un-der round they will not be broken by settlement, nor when violently shaken or jarred. The material being a bad conductor of heat, the pipes do not readily

A DETECTIVE'S EXPERIENCE.

His Successful Undertaking and Es cape From an Impending Fate.

(Buffalo, N Y, News) One morning several years ago, just as the dull gray light was beginning to show itself in the east, a small band of men might have been seen employed about a house on Ferry street, in Buffalo. There was nothing special either in the dress or appearance of the men to indicate their intention, but it was plain that they had business of importance on hand. Suddenly a man appeared at one of the windows, took in the situation at a glance, and, swinging himself outward with wonder ul quickness, scaled the roof of the house. This man was Tom Ballard, the notorious counterfeiter; and, armed to the tee h and fully realizing his situation, he defied justice and the officials below him. Some of the officers, knowing the desperate character ficers, knowing the desperate character of the man, proposed to shoot him untle he was killed, but one of the number promally protested, and declared that if his brother officers would assist him to ascend he would capture the man alive. Accordingly he began the difficult and dangerous task, and succeeded in bringing his prisoner to the ground in safety.

The man who accomplished this task was Mr. Thomas Curtin, the present su-perintendent of city police of Buffalo, N. Y. Mr. Curtin is a man who is known by every prominent detective and policeman in America, and he stands pre-em-inently in the front rank of his profes-Quiet and gentlemanly in appearance and manners, he possesses a courage, combined with marked physical powers, that make him the terror ef evil doers and the pride of law abiding citizens. Few people can realize, however, the trials, exposures, and even privations to which the members of every municipal police and fire department are exposed. Compelled to be on duty at uncertain hours, subjected to the most in-clement weather, and often necessitated by the nature of their duties to protracted undertakings, they endure a nervous and physical strain that is terrible. Such was the experience of Mr. Cartin in former days; and it is not surprising that he found himself suffering from a mysterious physical trouble. In relating his experience to a representative of this paper he said:

"At times when I was on duty I would fee! an unaccountable weariness and lack of energy. My appetite was also uncertain and my head seemed dull and heavy. I did not fully understand these troubles, but supposed as most people suppose, that I was suffeging from mala ia. I tried to throw off the feeling, but it would not go. I thought I might overcome it, but found I was mistaken, and I finally became so badly off that it was almost impossible for me to attend to my duties. I have known any number of men in the polic and fire departments of this country who have been afflicted as I was, and I doubt not there are to-day hundreds similarly troubled who, like myself, did not know the cause, or really what ailed

"Your present appearance, Mr. Curtin, does not indicate much physical de-bility," said the interviewer as he looked at the 220 pounds of bone and muscle standing nearly five feet eleven inches in height before him.

'O, no; that is altogether a thing of the past, and I am happy to say that for more than a year I have enjoyed almost perfect health, although I now realize that I was on the road to certain death by Bright's disease of the kidneys and traveling at a very rapid pace."
"How did you come to recover so completely?"

"That is just what I want to tell you, may possibly hear of it. I began the use of a pepular remedy at the earnest solicity, and found to my great gratification that I began feeling better. This feeling continued and I gained in strength and vigor until now I am perfectly well—of Warner's Countile to the continued and I gained in strength and vigor until now I am perfectly well—of Warner's Countile to the countile to and wholly through the instrumentality of Warner's Safe Cure which I believe to be the best medicine for policemen, firemen, railroad men or any other class of people exposed to danger or a change of weather, ever discovered. Since my recovery I have recommended it everywhere, and never knew a case where it failed either to cure or benefit. I would not be without it under any considera-tion, and I am positive it is a wonderfully valuable and at the same time entirely harmless remedy. Indeed, I see that Dr. Gunn, dean of the United States Medical College of New York, indorses it in the highest terms."

"So you experience little difficulty in the execution of your duties now, Mr. Curtin, do vou?

"None whatever. Our department was never in better condition than at pres-

"And so you never have any fear of some of the desperadoes whom you have been the means of bringing to justice?" "Not in the lea-t. Such men do not try to retaliate, partially because they have not the courage, but oftener because they respect an officer who does his duty?

The policemen, firemen, letter carriers and other public employes in this country have a particular trying life. When, therefore, a simple and pure remedy that can restore and sustain the health of all such men is found, it should be cause for great congratulation, especially when recommended by such a men as Superintendent Thomas Cartin of Buffalo.

The Formation of Ore Veins.

The formation of ore veins, according to the showing of Dr. Fleitmann of Germany, does not necessarily involve such long periods of time as geologists have assumed. Dr. F. states that some two years ago, he had the bottom of a stable pit filled and rammed with common clay containing iron. The pit had served its purpose for storing dung for about two years, during which time, occasionally, to prevent overheating, water had be en poured over it. Lately it had become necessary to remove the pit, when the surprising fact was revealed that the clay had entirely changed in character, and had become white; it was moreover, divided in numerous directions by fissures, from 1-25th to 1-6th inch in width, which were filled by compact iron pyrites. The explanation offered of this remarkable phenomenon is that the iron oxide of the clay was changed by the water, containing sulphate of am nonia, into sulphate of iron, and the latter had in accordance with molecular attraction, deposited itself in groups or fissures—the form in which it was found.

One Thing and Another.

McLean county has been organized, with her county seat at Washburn. Lakota, the county seat of Nelson county, is to have a $2,500 at once.

Lisbon comes to the front with an alleged rich gold find. Lucky Lisbon. The average yield of wheat in the vi-cinity of Pierre is claimed to be thirty bushels to the acre. Mrs Hymus Eastman, of Leon is now her own mother-in-law, having just married her deceased husband's father who is seventy-two years of age. The prohibition amendment in Ohio lacked some 30,000 or more votes of a majority, but came near enough to stimulate the enthusiasts on the subject to further effort.

The Bismarck Tribune says there is apparently a large immigration east from the Pacific states and territories. They are coming to look at the many inducements offered in Dakota.

Remarks the Lisbon Clipper: "If all the Michigan people in Dakota were to return to their old homes it would swell the state till she'd bust. They are here thick as snowflakes in January.

"There are souls in my church so small," said Mr. Talmadge to a reporter, "so infinitesimal, so mean, "that fifty of them could dance a schottische on the point of a cambric needle without touching each other."

The commercial business of Bismarck is not as large as it was before the Northern Pacific was built westward from the Missouri river. The completion of the road has also cut down the river business to comparatively small figures.

A Brooklyn girl went into court after a recreant lover and testified that she had received no less than 83,000 kisses from her defendant. Notwithstanding this bountiful supply of the needful to a girl's happiness, she is broken-hearted because her lover chooses to leave her.

According to Mormon figures, in the last six months 781 Mormons have died, 2,300 Mormon children have been born, and the Utah membership numbers 127,-294, distributed in 23,000 families. The most astounding item is the number of new members, 43,040, an increase of 20

Chicago Inter-Ocean: One eighteenth part of Dakota has been set apart for educational purposes. These lands cannot be sold for less than, $10 per acre, and large tracts, it is thought will bring more. They aggregate 5,500,000 acres, and are valued at $82,500,000. There will be no use for ignorance in the great wheat land of the future.

That Casselton has some married women who don't approve of husbands being out at night is indicated by this from the Reporter: "A party of half dozen ladies one night last week arrayed themselves in men's attire and made a raid on the docimile of a certain grass widow in the western part of town, whither the irate matrons were suspicious their liege lords were wont to hie away o' nights."

Gov. Ordway has pardoned Durham, who was convicted in 1878 for the mur-der of Chris Hoffman in the Black Hills, and sentenced to twenty years impris-onment. The conditions are that he shall leave the territory and not return.

Prospectus for 1884.

We propose to make it, without exception, the best as well as the cheapest Home and Fashion Magazine in America, and we believe a perusal of the list of attractions to appear each month will prove convincing to every reader.

Each number will contain:

A beautiful steel plate accompanied by a story or poem. A finely executed portrait of one of the expresidents of the United States, with a short skeich. Excellent colored fashion plates of the prevailing styles of dresses. Numerous illustrations of fashions in black and white. Illustrations and designs of the latest patterns in fancy work, in colors, or black and white. An illustrated household department. An illustration of architectural design. A piece of nicely selected music. A full-size cut paper pattern. Choice recipes for the household. Besides a rich variety of literary matter contributed by eminent writers, embracing novels, novelettes, stories, poetry, charades, dialogues, art and fashion notes, together with current notes of the day. As this magazine has been before the public for over fifty years, all may feel assured that the above will be carried out to the letter.
