

Three School Jobs Keep N. D.

It's a hectic schedule, but this young couple sees nothing unusual about the two of them teaching in three schools.

Five days a week, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Peitz leave their apartment in Valley City at 7:45 a.m. and drive eastward. Mrs. Peitz gets out at Oriska, N. D., where she teaches the 4th grade in Oriska School. Mr. Peitz keeps driving eastward, to split his day between the schools in Tower City and Buffalo.

In the morning, the 23-year-old teacher holds four classes in band and bookkeeping at Tower City. During the noon hour, he grabs a quick lunch and drives to Buffalo, where he has four afternoon classes in band and chorus.

The couple usually is home again by 5:30 p.m. Weekends are given over to just plain loafing or, in the fine fall weather, to pheasant hunting trips.

Mrs. Peitz is the former Elaine Arndt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Arndt of Cooperstown.

Hub Peterson Funeral Home of Valley City will have the funeral.

O.O. Anderson, Long At Sutton, Dies At 81 ⁵²

SUTTON, N. D.—Ole O. Anderson, 81, long time resident of this community, died Friday at Minot, where he had resided the last three years.

The funeral will be at 2 today in the church here which he helped found and of which he had been secretary 40 years. S. J. Quam Funeral Home of Cooperstown, N. D., is in charge.

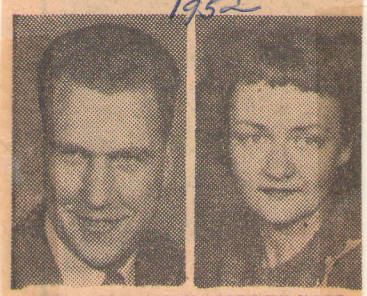

Born in Norway Dec. 7, 1870, Mr. Anderson migrated to Rockland, Wis., with his parents at the age of two. He came to Dakota Territory in 1887, settling near here.

In 1895 he married his childhood sweetheart, Anna Solberg of Rockland. They settled on a farm west of here. Mr. Anderson served on the school board, was a township supervisor and served three terms as a Griggs County Commissioner, resigning in 1938 because of ill health.

Mrs. Anderson died in 1940 and he then made his home with his daughters until 1949 when he went to Minot.

He leaves a son, Arnold of Sutton; two daughters, Mrs. Homer L. Hill, Towner, N. D., and Mrs. L. L. Hoffman, Toledo, Ore.; a brother in Wisconsin; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Two children preceded him in death.

Kenneth and Geraldine Anderson, husband-wife team which edits and publishes the weekly Battle Lake Review at Battle Lake, Minn., in nearby Otter Tail County faced a challenging job when Presidential Hopeful Eisenhower spent a week end near there

MR. AND MRS. ANDERSON

They wisely decided not to compete with the daily papers and radio; concentrated on a thorough job of reporting little items which others overlooked.

Last week's edition was full of Eisenhower, and the Andersons met their big moment with a full report of what the famous guest did. They report, for instance, that Ike had his first taste of chukar partridge and apparently liked it for he ate a whole bird; that the former general knows the difference between a duck and a drake but none of the photographers in the party did.

They also reported the astonishment of two local men when Ike shook hands and called them by name, and that Ike had been briefed ahead of time; that the local folks were happily pleased because Eisenhower didn't travel in a big black limousine but a grey Studebaker. Eisenhower forbade photographers to snap him in church, saying he didn't want anyone to think he was using the church for publicity, he snatched a nap Sunday afternoon from 3:35 to 5:45, he was too hoarse to sing the hymns in church but he joined in the responsive reading.

The Andersons recorded ruefully that of all the days in the year their camera picked that day to fail but the Fergus Falls Journal loaned them pictures. And the crowning touch to the Review's achievement was this little story, headed "Just In Case":

"Review editors are aware of the fact that this week's paper is slightly Ike-happy.

"That should please the Republicans.

"There is only one consolation we can offer our Democratic readers: there will be another issue of the Review next week.

"And just so you can't say he wasn't mentioned: Adlai Stevenson."

Dishwashing Time Cut 50 Minutes Using Electricity ...

"I save 50 minutes every time I wash the dishes," says Mrs. Albin Arneson, mother of four, "because I have my electric automatic dishwasher do the work."

No dishes to wash, no dishes to dry. No water to pump, no water to heat. It's all done electrically. Just think of the time savings!

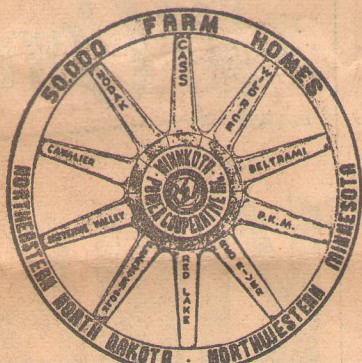

"I certainly wouldn't want to be without my dishwasher now," adds Mrs.

Arneson. "It's such a convenience. I just put the dishes in, let them wash and dry after two good hot rinsings. Washing and rinsing takes about 9 minutes. And I think the dishes are actually cleaner than hand-wiped because they are sterilized and never touched." She does recommend the use of soft water for washing, however, and always uses a specially-prepared dishwasher soap for best results.

The Arnesons, members of the Sheyenne Valley Electric Cooperative, live

10 miles northeast of Cooperstown, North Dakota. Mr. Arneson is secretary of the Finley Farmers Grain and Elevator Company. Both report they now have EXTRA TIME for leisure activities, thanks to rural electric power.

Rug Crocheting Hobby Solves Gift Problem For Mrs. Ayrea

Twisting her crochet hook in and out of a gaily colored floor rug that was forming in her hands, Mrs. E. M. Ayrea of Hobart, Ind., smiled and confided, "Christmas shopping is no problem to me. I merely wrap up one of my hand-made rugs."

Pioneer resident of Coopers-town, N. D., 82-year-old Mrs. Ayrea is here to visit her sons-in-law and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bake-well, 114 Ninth st S, and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Stue-wig, 1525 Thirteenth st N.

For years her nimble fingers have wielded a crochet hook to fashion rugs of old rags for her-self, her six children and their families.

"Many times," she said, "people would give me old clothes that I thought were in too good condition to cut up for my rugs, so I gave them to the needy and found some older materials to work with." She now rarely uses rags, simply a heavy crochet cord.

Hundreds of rainbow colored rugs, from large room dimension to smaller scatter size, have been given to friends and relatives, as a result of Mrs. Ayrea's diligent handiwork and her warm heart.

Each rug takes her just about three days time, working off and on and it's a pastime she keeps at constantly. Since her arrival here, a stack of six rugs is ready and now she's rounding the last border strip on a seventh.

Thirty-five years a farmer's wife, Mrs. Ayrea found that once her family had established homes of their own, her busy hands didn't find as much to do. Through the years, she's been forced to relinquish reading, knitting, quilting and embroidery because of failing eyesight. But she crochets by touch and thus keeps herself content and busy as the rugs multiply.

For the last 10 years, Mrs. Ayrea has made her home with a son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Mitchell of Hobart. No matter where she's visiting she brings her hobby with her.

Christmas time finds her prepared with a good stock of bright floor coverings that before the New Year dawns assuredly will be brightening up the homes of friends and relatives. She'll be returning to Hobart on Saturday. (Fargo Forum Photo.)

Cooperstown Youth Drowns In Shevenne

Special to The Fargo Forum
COOPERSTOWN, N. D.—A 17-year-old Cooperstown boy was drowned in the Shevenne River at about 9:30 p. m. Tuesday when he was caught by strong currents and swept over the Ueland dam five miles east of Cooperstown.

The victim was Robert J. Adam, son of R. J. Adam, Cooperstown automobile dealer. The Adam family resided in Fargo before coming to Cooperstown.

The youth had been swimming with two companions above the dam. Although all three youths were said to be excellent swimmers, Adam apparently misjudged the strength of the current.

His companions, Charles Johnson and Maurice Saxerud, both of Cooperstown, saw Adam being swept over the dam but were unable to locate the victim in the churning water beyond. Recent rains have swelled the river.

Volunteer firemen from Cooperstown dragged the river and located the body at 12:30 a. m. Wednesday about 100 feet downstream from the dam.

The three young men had been working as flagmen for an aerial crop dusting operation. It is believed they stopped for a swim on their way to Cooperstown after finishing work for the day.

Funeral service will be at 2 Friday in Berg Memorial gymnasium with burial at Galesburg, N. D. Quam Funeral Home is in charge.

Robert is survived by his father, step-mother and four half-sisters and brothers — Karen, Randall, Robin and Candace.

New Citizens Hear State Bar President

Thirty-eight new American citizens heard a Bismarck attorney explain the obligations of citizenship at naturalization-repatriation ceremonies in U. S. Court here Tuesday.

John A. Zuger, president of the North Dakota Bar Association, told the group that the United States "is a nation of immigrants, dedicated to principles of government that go back 167 years."

Included in the audience of new citizens were persons from 17 countries, members of the largest class ever to participate in naturalization ceremonies in Fargo.

Zuger said many of this country's highest-placed persons "have become citizens on their petitions to do so—as you have done."

"It takes optimism, faith and courage to break old ties and start anew in a new country," he said. "But optimism, faith and courage also are the qualities which have made this country great."

Zuger discussed the responsibilities of American citizenship, and said that "This government is now your government; it will be as honest, decent and great as we are or as we wish to make it, or it will fall through our failure to accept our obligations."

Presiding at the ceremonies was Judge Charles J. Vogel. The candidates were presented by Clifford W. Milburn of the immigration and naturalization service, who told the court the class included 16 displaced persons "who have been more than diligent in fulfilling the requirements of citizenship."

Following the ceremony, the new citizens were presented American flags by Donald H. Crothers, who represented the Fargo Elks. Members of the Women's Relief Corps presented the group with patriotic literature. At noon, the class of 38 persons were guests of the Kiwanis Club at luncheon.

Chaff And Chatter

By RUTH FAIRBANKS

LAST WEEK was a good one for catching up with what some former North Dakota folks are doing.

It's easy to lose track of them and their names even become a dim memory until a letter or newspaper clipping brings them back to mind again and we feel acquainted all over again.

Fairbanks

Since that's the sort of thing folks are doing these days anyway as they tackle Christmas greeting cards and notes it all seemed sort of appropriate.

DO YOU REMEMBER Jeanne Alm, the little girl with the big voice who grew up around here and began singing when she was a bit of a tike?

Jeanne

It's been a long time since we've heard anything of Jeanne who is now Mrs. Lloyd Jensen and lives in Evansville, Ind.

That's why it was fun the other day to get a clipping from an Evansville paper with a story about Jeanne and her singing and her family.

She's still singing. That's how come the story. She has been featured on weekend Elks Club entertainment at Evansville and that's where the writer of the story heard "a whale of a lot of singing emanating from a minnow-sized girl named Jeanne Lamb."

She got interested so looked Jeanne up for an interview, learned about her early musical activities here where she was auditioned successfully for a spot on WDAY's "Kiddie Klub." She remained with the youngsters' variety show until she was 11, age of retirement from the show.

Folks hereabouts remember Jeanne and her singing for many years for she continued on the artists staff at WDAY. She and Lloyd were married in 1940 while he was in civil aeronautics in the west and they lived there for a time. Then he was in naval service. He was on the staff at the control tower at Hector Airport before moving to Evansville.

Maybe you've forgotten that she filled a six-month engagement on Don McNeil's "Breakfast Club" show in 1945. That was when she was still in Fargo and got a leave of absence to be on the breakfast club show to take the place of the regular vocalist who was having a baby. That was when she acquired the name of Lamb as a professional. Jack Owens of the McNeil show thought "Lamb" would be more easily remembered than "Alm."

"Unlike so many other performers who struggle to reach the peak of show business then find it a lonely, tearswept height, Jeanne knows when she's happy. Her talent makes her different from thousands of other contented Evansville housewives only in this way: instead of seeking diversion at a bridge table a couple afternoons a week, Jeanne relaxes with the Mark Metcalfe Orchestra in the bustling, smoky Elks Club two nights a week.

"I sing because I love to; I don't consider it work," she says.

"So understanding husband Lloyd (chief of the Evansville CAA control tower) baby-sits with the boys while mother belts out her lilting Broadway show songs and husky torch ballads."

Bjarne Asp Fits Building Home Into Busy Schedule

Working towards a masters degree, teaching a full schedule of high school classes and doing some substitute preaching would seem to leave a man without much time for any other interests.

But Bjarne Asp, 212 10th Ave. S., Moorhead, found two interests which now are taking a lot of his time — his fiancee, Lois Klubben of Cooperstown, N. D., whom he will marry Friday, is the main interest. The second is the home into which they will move when they return from their wedding trip.

When they became engaged, Lois and Bjarne decided a home of their own was what they wanted.

They pored over blueprints, rearranged plans and came up with a hybrid which actually is mostly Bjarne's own conception of what a house should be. At least, the kind of a house on which he felt he was capable of doing most of the work.

At the time, Lois was a senior at Concordia College, and Bjarne was in his first year as an instructor in English in Moorhead Senior High School.

He also was attending classes at NDAC working toward his masters degree.

But they decided that house building could be fitted somewhere into the 24 hours in a day so they bought a lot at 2217 7th St. N. in Fargo.

He hasn't attempted to do the whole thing himself. Plumbing, wiring, plastering, among other things, have been contracted. Also, a brother, Robert, who built his own home in Moorhead two years ago, has been putting in some hours and there have been a few other assists. But even with that help, Bjarne and his fiancee found they had plenty of work to do before their wedding.

Before Concordia closed Lois worked at the house, helping lay the sub-floor. Right now, though, she's very much occupied on a handwork of a different type — she's made her own wedding gown, and a number of her trousseau items.

But when they get back from their wedding trip she'll get out the jeans and they'll spend the summer hours completing the house. She also plans to make drapes and curtains when the painting is done and the linoleum and hardwood floors are laid.

It's a three bedroom house with a large living room, dining area and kitchen and a full basement.

Bjarne, who has done work on houses for other people says it's an entirely different feeling when you're building your own. And once you've worked on your own house, he says, it's in your blood. So much so that even if they move from this home after he has completed his work for his masters degree, he won't have any qualms about starting another wherever they live.

For the next year, however, they have their schedule filled—filled to the brim. He'll continue to teach at Moorhead High and work on his degree at NDAC. One of the three bedrooms has been designated as his study. Lois will teach English, band and chorus at Wolverton, Minn.
