

MRS. T. P. OVERBY DIED LAST NIGHT; ILL ONLY A DAY

Complications Set in After Birth of Child Tuesday
Evening.

FUNERAL FRIDAY LIKELY

Deepest Sorrow is Visited
Upon Community—Baby
Alive and Well.

A mother for only a day.

Thus is told the story of the last day of the life of Clara Hogan Overby, wife of Thorval P. Overby of the firm of Greenland, Lunde & Co. of this city. Mrs. Overby died last evening (Wednesday) shortly after six o'clock. On the previous evening she had given birth to a daughter, her first child, but did not regain consciousness after that hour. Practically all hope for her recovery vanished yesterday morning when life was shown to be slowly ebbing away. The new born daughter lives and is wonderfully healthy.

The death is one of the saddest visited upon this community in a long, long while. For the husband there is untold sympathy.

Mrs. Overby became the wife of Mr. Overby about four years ago at Rochester, Minn., where the year before she had gone with her parents upon their removal from Jessie. Until last year they made their home in Blabon. When the family moved here she did not come into a strange community, her residence near Jessie having won her a wide acquaintance here, and as a consequence she quickly became a part of local life and was one of the best known and best liked ladies of Cooperstown.

Her death is one most difficult to realize, particularly for those many who have seen her about her work at home in the city of very late days. Up to the very hour when she brought a new life into this world she had been, apparently, in the very best of health.

In addition to her husband, daughter and two step-children, Mrs. Overby is survived by her father, three sisters at home in Rochester, Minn., a sister in Yellowstone, and a brother, Gene, of Sutton. Upon the conveniences of the father and sister in the west will depend the day for the funeral. It is quite apt to be Friday afternoon at the Lutheran church in this city with burial in Ringsaker cemetery.
