The victims were:

Manley Rusten, 56, of Page, N. D.

Mrs. Simon Hornberger of Golden Valley, N. D.

Rusten, employed by the North Dakota highway department only three days, was fatally injured Monday about 4:30 p. m. as he was cutting weeds three miles west of Hope.

The accident occurred near the intersection of N. D. 32 and N. D.

It appeared that the sickle bar of Rusten's mower struck a bridge abutment, throwing him from the tractor to the creek bottom 15 feet below. The tractor apparently rolled over the man.

Passersby summoned a doctor but Rusten died before he arrived.

Rusten was mowing in the ditch along the highway and it was believed he did not notice the bridge abutment because of the high weeds.

A lifelong resident of North Dakota, Rusten was a mechanic by trade. He was born March 20, 1895, at Aneta, N. D., and married Julia Caroline Vig at Cooperstown, N. D., June 25, 1921. They had resided in Page about 10 years.

Survivors are Mrs. Rusten; two sons, Manley, Jr., of Vallejo, Calif., and John of Glendale, Calif., and a daughter, Mrs. Donald (Carol) Thompson of Portland, Ore., and three brothers, Alfred, Peter and Henry of Aneta.

There were good players in this area, Wylie recalled. He played for a time with Walter Wilmot who later went to Chicago in the National league and played four years there in left field. Another was Varley Anderson, who later played in the American association. One of the Dalrymples (Wylie wasn't sure of his first name), Joe Straus, D. W. Highlight of his memories was a game played in the fall of 1889 at the Tower City fair.

"A team with players from Tower City, Page, Wheatland and Casselton had won the Cass county championship and the fair management wanted a team from Barnes county to play them. We had just had a tournament at Sanborn and I had captained the Getchell township team which won the championship.

"We accepted the offer to play a game for a $25 prize. For the team we picked Mort White, Gene Keene, Felix Lucian, my brother Scott and myself from the Getchell team, Tom and Evarett Ellis from Cuba and Ing and Ray Moe of Sanborn. We met at Valley City the evening before the game and drove to Tower City in buggies next day.

"Well, we scored six runs in that first inning and that just about settled the game. Our 'kidder' went to work on them and they didn't have anything to say. We even pulled a triple play when with men on first and second, Ev Ellis, second baseman, caught a hot liner near second, stepped on the base and threw to first baseman Felix Lucian.

"Lucian, by the way, was a real first baseman and could reach a long distance for a ball. Even the professionals weren't much better. Our pitcher, Ray Moe, also had good stuff. He was aided by the fact that the pitching distance then was 50 feet. But I can certify that he had lots on the ball for I caught the game. Our other infielders were Mort White and Ing Moe, and we had Scott Wylie, Tom Ellis and Gene Keene in the outfield.

"We won the game, 16 to 4, and split the prize equally, our other expenses from Valley City being paid by the fair management. I went home with $2.45 as my share, since I had paid for a ticket from Sanborn to Valley City."

Wylie continued to reside in Valley City until about 1942, when his wife died. He had since resided at Anacortes with his sons and daughters. He was born in 1855 in Westport, N. Obituary

Millard F. Washburn, whose death on July 4th was chronicled in these columns last week, was born in Half Day Lake County, Illinois, on April 25th, 1848, being 73 years of age at time of his death. He was the fourth son of Seth and Orra Washburn and lived in Illinois until 1855 when, with his parents, he came west to Red Wing, Minn. The trip to this point was made on the only railroad west of Chicago to Salena, from which point the journey was continued on board the steamboat Lady Franklin.

Mr. Washburn has often told his friends of his first impressions upon arriving at Red Wing. There were more Indians than whites at that time at Red Wing and he has told of some of the scares he suffered as a result of the Indians, one scare in particular being related as how a "Big Buck" looked at him through the bed room window, in which room he was playing. Mr. Washburn has told how he hid under the bed and finally fell asleep, staying in that state how long he does not know but at least long enough to give his parents a genuine scare, they believing him to have been taken by the Indians. The parents happiness can be guessed at upon discovering their boy awakened from his sleep and crawling out from under the bed.

Mr. Washburn received his education in the "little old red school house" and at Hamlin University, where he was a student up to the time the institution was moved to near the Twin Cities. Between his school terms he labored in the shingle mills to support his mother and a sister, his father having died in 1864 during the Civil War. After leaving school Mr. Washburn went into the lumber business as a sawman and sorter. This was followed by experiences in the grain business, milling business and a period of employment with the American Express Company.

In the early eighties T. J. Cooper induced Mr. Washburn to go to North Dakota. He settled on a farm in what is now known as Washburn township, just west of Cooperstown. The trip to Dakota was made with a party of others in charge of five car-loads of mules, sixty in number. They arrived at Sanborn on April 1, 1881. Mr. Washburn called it a "Fools Day for certain," for as far as the eye could reach one could see nothing but snow. He and his party had come through one of the famous early day Dakota blizzards which tied them up at Tower City for two days. The open cars which contained the mules became a terrible place for noise and others who made this trip with Mr. Washburn declare that one can little imagine the experiences of those two days.

Two years after his arrival here and settlement on his farm and after he had made improvements on his place, he was married to Miss Mary M. Husel of St. Clair, Michigan, this on July 2, 1883. Together Mr. and Mrs. Washburn operated the farm, enduring all the ups and downs, taking the bitter with the sweet, suffering the blizzards, the drought, hail, freeze-outs and low grain prices up to 1903, when the farm was rented. In 1907 he came to Cooperstown, where he has since resided. Since then he made purchase of another farm property north of Cooperstown.

Mr. Washburn has been a highly respected citizen in this community and has been often favored in the way of public positions. In 1911 he was elected a member of the city council and was re-elected in 1913. Again by special election in 1918 he was elected to fill an unexpired term as alderman. In 1916 he was elected President of the Steele and Griggs County Old Settlers Association which position he has since held. In May, 1917 he became secretary of the Griggs County Farmers Mutual Fire and Lightning Insurance Co. and continued in the duties of that office up to the time of his death on July 4, 1921.

ELDON WALKER, former street salesman and carrier boy for The Fargo Forum, called on the Route Builder editor while home on leave. He explained that his early experience with the Forum has been a big help since he joined the navy. Many young fellows who have never worked find it difficult to adjust themselves. Those who know how to complete a job assigned to them have no trouble.

He met and talked with the crew of the ill-fated German destroyer, the Graf Spee, and relates that they were a fine group of young men.

"They were gentlemanly and spoke English so it could easily be understood," he said. "They were from 17 to 23 years old. Speaking of the sea fight in which the Spee engaged, one told me it was a terrible fight and we were all pretty well terrified. We weren't there to fight all the English. My best friend got killed."

Walker met the German sailors at Montevideo, where a group was hospitalized, and at Buenos Aires, where some were interned.

Reports on Camelback Reunion

By DICK WESTLEY

Class of 1934, Elmhurst, Ill.

To anyone living near the Great Lakes and accustomed to changes in the weather every hour on the hour, the most immediately striking thing about Arizona is that ever-present sunshine. Cool in the evening, sunny and warm during the day — push button weather if we ever saw it.

And for those of us lucky enough to attend the North Dakota reunion November 18-20 at Camelback Inn, the next most striking thing about Arizona is Camelback itself and the genuine hospitality of Jack and Louise Stewart.

North Dakotans began arriving as early as Monday and by Thursday evening quite a delegation was on hand to welcome three students and Dr.

Dorothy Lipp, Dean of Women at the University, when they arrived from Grand Forks.

Classes Continue

It seems that the Dean didn't buy the idea that this was just a lark for the three delegates from the campus (Dolores Paulson of Bismarck, Marilyn Simonson of Medina and Tom Sullivan of Lisbon) and conducted classes in the history, geography and geology of whatever part of the country they were traversing at any given moment. They also stopped to visit on the campuses of the Universities of Nebraska, Colorado and Utah and planned a similar visit to the University of New Mexico on their way back.

More than 100 alumni had arrived by Friday, the evening of Jack and Louise Stewart's reception in their beautiful home just beyond the Inn. The three students had taken time out from swimming that afternoon to rehearse with Mrs. Lloyd Stone and furnished the highlights of the open house by performing—Marilyn and Tom with vocal solos and Dolores on the violin.

Tell of U Activities

The reunion banquet was next on the agenda that same evening and was ably handled by Dewey Balch, 1931, acting as M.C.; Lloyd Stone, 1930, brought us up to date on activities at the University, scholastic as well as extra-curricular; Henry Lykken, 1905, described some of the functions of the Alumni Association and President-Emeritus John C. West again proved, if it were still necessary, that he has a good story and a worthwhile thought for any occasion. Dean Lipp introduced her three charges and gave a very entertaining account of their trip. (It seems that her father, who accompanied them, is somewhat worried about going back to North Dakota for the winter, after hearing about six-foot snow drifts and contemplating his own height of only five feet six).

Grid Movie Shown

Tom Sullivan, president of the student council, brought greetings from the student body and later in the evening narrated the movie of the recent N.D.-N.D.A.C. football game. We did our best on some University songs, with an invaluable assist from the three undergraduates and direction by Bob Ryan, 1934, but the intervening years can be quite a handicap when it comes to remembering the words.

M. F. WASHBURN SUDDENLY PASS'D AWAY JULY 4TH

M. F. Washburn is with us no more.

Distant readers of these lines, readers who were once Cooperstown residents, will be no more surprised in this word than were his nearest friends and neighbors who were shocked beyond expression at passing of the word of his death on Monday, July 4th.

Mr. and Mrs. Washburn had left in their car Monday morning to drive into the Mose community where Mr. Washburn wished to look after some insurance matters. Mr. Washburn appeared as well as usual on the trip. Three miles south of Mose, in Bryan township, Mr. Washburn was taken ill. He was hurried to the nearest farm home, that of Ed Solee, and physicians were summoned, but Mr. Washburn had breathed his last before help could arrive. Apoplexy was given as the cause of death, which occurred at 11 o'clock.

This hasty "call away" of one of such great acquaintance, he was a resident of this community since 1881, being one of the very first pioneers to these parts, wrung the very heart of the community and caused a pause in activities such as one who was so big a part of the everyday life of the community as was Mr. Washburn could cause. He had been, for a man of his age, in splendid health, and was daily as active as the rest in the community in the fulfilling of his duties. Mr. Washburn was 73 years old on April 25, 1921, but his years were not marked upon him, he carrying himself daily as a man in his late fifties or early sixties.

Obituary of the long and useful life of Mr. Washburn will be published in these columns next week, the delay being caused by a desire to obtain a complete account of his life, such as was not immediately available.

The remains of the departed one were returned to Cooperstown by train Monday afternoon. Funeral services were conducted yesterday afternoon at the Congregational Church, which services were attended by a great crowd of old friends and neighbors. The remains were taken that same afternoon to Red Wing, Minnesota, to be buried beside those of his folks.

That tears should be shed by the entire people of the community in the case is but natural and that the same people should crown his grave with garlands is to be expected, for few of us will live as long or as well, and fewer yet will the Angel of Death greet with such a loving touch.

Dear old friend Washburn is gone. Another name is stricken from the ever lessening roll of our old settlers and a solitary woman in the sunset of life, and a lonely home, are left to attest how sadly he will be missed. It must be so; these tender and loving ties cannot be severed without a pang. Yet in such a death there is not the great cause for grief. His life work was done and very well done. Done with lifes duties and cares, which he never relinquished, he but goes to that everlasting rest he so faithfully earned.

There is no language at our command by which we can fittingly portray the sincerity of Mr. Washburn's Christian character; and in the experience of his life the writer can safely say that he never met one who seemed to more nearly walk hand in hand with his God. Conscience guided his every act. He was a model of mental industry and a model in his successful efforts to be a good neighbor, a good friend and a good citizen. Strictly honest in every service he rendered, he always sought to give more than he received. A Christian, an honorable gentleman in every sense of the word was Mr. Washburn. Many a days pathway has he made happier and brighter by his greetings. He commanded the respect of all sects and classes of people, as the attendance at his funeral yesterday afternoon fully verified. It was so natural, it seems, for Mr. Washburn to do right and to cheer his friends along. We fear we did not appreciate the full worth of Mr. Washburn until after the thread of life was severed and those almost daily visits to our newspaper office ceased. Realizing today what Mr. Washburn meant to us and to the community we are awake to the realization that a good and righteous man has been taken from our midst.

To Mrs. Washburn the Sentinel-Courier extends its sympathies, in which we know every man, woman and child in the community will wish to join, knowing, as we all do, just how great must be the grief of one who has enjoyed the constant companionship for so many years of so good a soul as M. Sept 29, 1929

Mrs. Oline Westley, a pioneer in Griggs county since 1882, suddenly passed away yesterday morning as a result of a stroke of apoplexy. Funeral rites will be conducted over the remains from the Zion Lutheran church, south of Cooperstown, tomorrow afternoon.

She had appeared to be in her usual good health until Tuesday afternoon when she suffered the stroke. On the Saturday previous she had attended the funeral of her daughter, Mrs. Ashland, but the journey showed no ill effects.

Came Here in 1882

Mrs. Westley came to Griggs county in 1882 and settled on a homestead south of Cooperstown with her family. Here she remained until her husband, O. H., passed away in 1918. From that time she made her home with her son, Hans Westley, on his farm near the first homestead. She was here at the time of her death.

Born near Stavanger, Norway, January 1, 1837, Mrs. Westley was 92 years old at the time of her death. In 1862 she was married the first time, to Martin Njaa. To this union one son, O. M. Westley, now residing at Hannaford was born. Martin Njaa died but a few years after the marriage and in 1866, she was united to O. H. Westley.

In Minnesota a Year

The family left Norway and came to America in 1881. They settled in Minnesota but a year later again moved, this time to their homestead in Griggs county.

As a mother and a friend, Mrs. Oline Westley lived an unselfish life, endeavoring at all times to make life more pleasant for her family and her friends. She took an active part in the Zion Lutheran church, of which she was a member.

Five Sons, One Daughter

She is survived by five sons, Hans, M. D., O. B., O. C., and one daughter, Anna. Three of her daughters have died, one at the age of eleven, the year following their arrival to America; Mrs. Marie Ashland, recently at Fargo; and Mrs. Martha Wufestad, who died a few years ago.

He Is Mayor Of Jamestown

Teacher Of Political Science Puts Theories Into

By JERRY RUFF
Staff Writer

JAMESTOWN, N. D. — Going from the political science theory of the classroom to the practice of politics as mayor of Jamestown wasn't too difficult for William Westley.

"I'm used to sitting in brickbat seats," he said, as he sat in his office in City Hall.

Westley, a bristling-sharp man in his fifties, teaches political science and economics and is registrar at Jamestown College. He has been mayor of Jamestown since April, 1958, when he defeated W. F. Sharp by 19 votes.

If you were to describe Westley in one word, you would say he is "resilient." A bouncy type, he has the ability to roll with punches. He gives friend and foe alike the kid glove treatment.

But he brooks no nonsense, and you get the impression that the kid gloves could turn into boxing gloves if a political or civic slugging match were called for.

Brickbat seats Westley had known before winning the job of mayor were as superintendent of schools in various Minnesota and North Dakota towns, alderman in Jamestown from 1954 until 1958 and registrar at Jamestown College since 1948. He has been teaching at the college since 1943.

One of the Westley policies which has caused considerable antagonism is strict enforcement of parking laws.

No one is excused from paying parking tickets.

And while meters are prohibited by state law on city streets, Jamestown has metered a parking lot which it leases from the Northern Pacific Railroad.

Westley had a letter on his desk from an area farmer. In it was a check for a parking ticket and a sheaf of sales slips from local stores showing how much had been purchased in town by the farmer.

The letter said, "If you still want to cash the check, go ahead," intimating the mayor should have a change of heart after seeing the business this man had given city merchants.

"I can't overlook this ticket," Westley said. "If I excused one, where would I draw the line?"

Westley said he had received a ticket for parking himself and had paid it. "I was on city business when I was tagged, too," he said.

Public relations, Westley believes, is extremely important in running a city. One of his first orders when taking office was that all city employees were to answer telephones with a pleasant "good morning."

Westley has a theory about people who are chronic complainers. "Many of these people have real troubles, personal troubles, and they (the complainers) must be dealt with sympathetically and with understanding."

How does the man-on-the-street feel about having a professor as a mayor? Is the college background an advantage or disadvantage in downtown politics?

Westley says he gets both favorable and unfavorable reactions to the academic side of his life.

He said there are some people who talked against electing an educator as mayor "for fear I would close up the town at 11 p.m."

Westley has fought the idea that he is something apart from the rough and tumble of everyday life.

"I called personally at least 500 families during the campaign and asked them for their vote.

"I believe it is the function of government to meet the needs of the people and to tell them how issues are going to affect them."

Westley said he has drunk more coffee since becoming mayor than he did in all the rest of his life.

"It's a good way to talk informally with people and find out what they think should be done in the city."

The Westley administration evidently has been doing plenty. The mayor listed some accomplishments:

For the first time since 1946, new paving has been added. About 42 blocks were put into paving in 1959. Also about 50 blocks of curb and gutter were constructed this year. That's about twice as much as in 1958.

Building permits issued this year so far total $2,975,472. This compares with $2,263,395 in all of 1958 and $834,500 in 1957.

The Westleys have three daughters. Catherine and Dorothy are married and Marion is at home. She is in 10th grade. The other girls, like their father, are graduates of Jamestown College.

Mrs. Westley isn't too happy in the political climate. "When I make a speech and she is there," Westley said, "I feel she is going to tug at my sleeve any minute to get me to sit down."

Westley is a member of the State Bar Assn., having attended the University of North Dakota Law School. "How do you like that, John?" he asked. "Not bad," said Davis. The couple met later and were married.

Westley said he is a "Republican by inheritance." He said he has not given much thought to further political ambitions. He said he will make up his mind about running for re-election as mayor when the time comes.

The Westleys live in a small house which was converted from a consolidated school building. Westley obtained at Pingree, N. D. He did the work himself of making the school into a home.

There is one area where the academic and political natures of Westley have not meshed. He admits to the failing generally attributed to college professors; he is somewhat absent minded.

Worst of all, he forgets names. "This is terrible for a politician," he said. "I'm working on correcting it."

Walkers Look Forward To Many Changes As They Return To States From Guam

Gouldson & Marten McWalter & Sutton

A little thing like a spool of white thread has taken on new importance to Mrs. Eldon M. Walker who is about to embark upon housekeeping in the United States after two years of residence on the Island of Guam while her husband, Naval Chief Walker has been on sea duty in the South Pacific. He has been assigned to the Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

Their daughter, Laura Lee, was born in Virginia and has spent all of her short life there and in Guam.

Many things, necessary but heretofore taken for granted, like white cotton thread, became the objects of shopping hunts in the shops of Guam as the women adjusted themselves to quite a different life.

For Chief Walker life in foreign ports has become an old story in spite of his youth. When May rolls around he will have checked off 14 years of sea duty. His rating now is that of Chief Steelworker and his work has always been in salvage and repair. He has been in the Western Pacific area—the Philippines, Okinawa, Tokyo and Guam.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Walker, Jackson Apartments.

The Walkers were married in August, 1946, and Mrs. Walker joined her husband at Guam as soon as housing was available. Mrs. Walker's home had been in New York.

"Life in Guam was one of contrast in many ways," Mrs. Walker says. "Our first home there was in a Navy base quonset hut which was fairly roomy, electrically equipped and modern in all respects. Later we moved into a permanent home at Tipalao.

"It's a constant battle between ants and cockroaches. They thrive on the tropical climate and you never saw such large ones. Not only do the ants devour any foodstuffs they can get at but they've developed a liking for nylon which makes a wardrobe problem."

Many fruits such as breadfruit, papaya and bananas are inexpensive. Taros take the place of potatoes. There is a Chinese cabbage grown there which is quite good.

All milk is either a converted type or frozen concentrate which has to be cooked. The problem is to keep the milk stirred as it is used or else what remains toward the bottom of the container becomes syrupy.

Tomatoes are expensive and most often very watery. Lettuce, too, is not very desirable.

As far as meat is concerned, Mrs. Walker says it is available. It's a matter, of course, of using whatever has arrived from the States.

The arrival of shipments of duty free goods from points in the Orient provides a shopping spree.

Cotton clothes are most desirable as even rayon rots in the excessive moisture. Moisture is an ever-present menace, not only to clothing but to much equipment.

"To be sure, there are difficulties in housekeeping and meal planning, but Mrs. Walker says they're not serious ones and on the whole life for those residing in Guam is made pleasant. There are clubs for entertainment and there are good movies.

"Movies are the outdoor type," Mrs. Walker says, "and you go equipped for rain at any time for Guam does not observe conventional rainy seasons and it rains a lot and at any time. So you always take a poncho or raincoat for you are sitting on benches with no roof over your head. Babies are taken in their bassinets and placed on the benches with the rest of the family."

There are good schools and people returning to the States find their children well up in their grades.

Laura Lee is having her first experience with winter temperatures and snow in the whole of her little more than three years. She likes the snow and wants to get out in it but she greatly resents such things as snow suits and wool and all the clothes her parents know she must wear while here.

The Walkers left Guam the day before Christmas and Laura Lee learned that Santa Claus even found little girls on shipboard. There was a fine Christmas party.

The ship docked at Honolulu on New Year Day and the kindly captain, knowing that there were many shopping needs to be attended to, held the ship over until late the next afternoon.

"That didn't take care of all the shopping we needed to do, however," Mrs. Walker says. "We spent a busy time in San Francisco. It's amazing how many things one needs in returning to the United States after residence in the tropics."

Chief Walker's assignment to Great Lakes Naval Training Station will be his first shore duty in his many years of service in the Navy. Mrs. Walker and Laura Lee will remain here until he finds housing there.

Mrs. Ronald Westergren and son John arrived from Red Wood, California, on Thursday to spend a few months with her mother, Mrs. Fred Paintner. Her husband will follow in June upon finishing college.

2 N. D. Men On Plane Land Safely In Fog

BISMARCK, N. D. (P)—A Bismarck-bound private plane with two Williston men aboard, which was feared down north of Bismarck, landed safely Wednesday forenoon at Dunn Center, N. D.

Civil Air Patrol authorities had been alerted to search an area about 25 miles north of Bismarck as soon as a heavy fog which covered Central North Dakota lifted.

The pilot was Bruce Wright, a veteran North Dakota aviator, and his passenger was Frank Jestrab, Williston attorney.

They left Williston at 8 a. m. yesterday in Wright's Cessna 170 with a 3½-hour supply of fuel.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration radio center at Bismarck at about 9:45 a. m. advised Wright, then northwest of Bismarck, to head for Dickinson because fog had shut in the Bismarck airport.

Wright started for Dickinson, spotted a hole in the fog over Dunn Center, about 35 miles northwest of Dickinson, and landed safely.

Police officials and highway patrolmen were alerted to search for the plane after it was last heard from by the CAA in Dickinson about 10 a. m., when Wright radioed he had spotted a hole in the fog and was going down for a landing.

Wright, one of the oldest aviators in the state in point of service, has more than 14,000 hours as a commercial pilot.

Jestrab, an attorney with Amerada Petroleum Corporation for three years, left that firm about a year ago to form a law partnership with Arley Bjella, Williston attorney.

The partnership has offices in Williston and Bismarck and Jestrab visits the Bismarck offices at least once a week, usually traveling by air.
