

Sept. 28

Sutton Reporter: Two threshing hands who were working with a rig south of town, got into a dispute Monday night over the distribution of sleeping blankets and started to settle it with a jug as the handiest weapon of combat. The fight evidently merited the attention of peace officers, as Constable A. H. Retzlaff was called on the scene. The two were brought to town and given a hearing in Justice J. B. McWethy's court. He gave the larger of the two men a fine of $25. In default of payment he was committed to jail at Coopers-town.
