

Notwithstanding the bad roads and blustery weather there was quite a good attendance of farmers and citizens at the rural institute meeting held in the court house last Friday afternoon and the meeting was one of much interest to those present. Prof. Mason gave a very good talk on agriculture and manual training in the schools and the glee club sang some lively pieces which pleased the audience. These meetings can result in much good and benefit to all during these winter months if the farmers and citizens will put a little more enthusiasm into the project and boost it along with their presence and help.
