Is composed of Herbal and Maniagnous products, which permeate the aubstance of the Langs, expectorates the acrid matter that collects in the Bronchial Tubes, and forms a soothing coating, which relieves the irritation that causes the cough. It cleanses the lungs of all impurities, strengthens them when enfeebled by disease, invigorates the circulation of the blood, and braces the nervous system. Slight colds often end in consumption. It is dangerous to neglect them. Apply the remedy promptly. A testof twenty years warrants the assertion that no remedy has ever been found that is as prompt in its effects as IUIT'S EXPECTORANT. A single dose raises the phlegm, subdues inflamination, and its use speaduly cures the most obstinate cough. A pleasant cordial, children take it readily. For Croup it is invaluable and should be in every family.

THE LILY SELF-PAINTED.

The Jersey Beauty Gives Over Her Own Signature a Brief Sketch of Her Life.

To Editor of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. "The Southern," Jan. 16.-Dear Sir: You desire a few details of my early life, as much has been published of an erroneous nature concerning it. I was born on the Isle-not the state-of Jersey, twenty-eight years ago. My father was Dean of the island, and Senior Dean of the United Kingdom. My grandfather and great-grandfather also belonged to the clergy—all were dignitaries of the church. My mother was a Scotchwoman. I had six brothers, and all but one were older than I. I was the only girl. I led a most retired life, sharing my brothers' pursuits and receiving the same education, until I reached my 20th year. Then I married Mr. Edward Langtry, and passed a six months honeymoon on a yacht. Two years subsequently I went to London—chiefly to seek the advice of a physician, as I had just recovered from a severe attack of typhoid fever, and I dreaded its consequences. My entrance into London social life dates from a party at Lady Sebright's. Thence forward I was invited everywhere and treated with the great-United Kingdom. My grandfather and everywhere and treated with the greatest kindness and consideration. During three seasons I figured incessantly in London society. Meanwhile the grat expense connected with social pleasures, and the Irish troubles—my husband being an Irish land owner and largely dependent for his income upon his property in Ireland—exhausted our means. It became necessary for me to earn a livelihood. I had a strong inclination for the stage, and my husband sanctioned it. My family in Jersey was was shrunken; four of my brothers had died—my favorite brother was killed by a fall in the hunting field—so the prospect of absence from England was less little and the stage of the prospect of absence from England was less part of the stage of the distressing than it might have been. Mr. Langtry strove and is striving to do his share toward restoring our fortness, and regrets as much as I do that he is unable, on that account, to accompany me to America. That is my whole story. Since I arrived here my life has been a public one; I have had nothing to conceal and have nothing to excuse, content in the belief that falsehood and malignity will in the end defeat themselves with-out effort on my part. Yours truly, LILY LANGTRY.

Happy Hunting Grounds.

New York Commercial. "Observing in the papers of yesterday," writes a correspondent, "a notice of the death of J—W—, I was reminded of the following authentic anecdote which is currently related of him: Some years since he was accosted by an acquaintance with: "How do you get along." "Notvery well; I've iost my wife-Everything goes wrong. I want to die and go to Heaven if I can get there. and go to Heaven if I can get there.' What kind of a place would you have Heaven to be?' asked his interrogator. 'Why, sir,' said W—, who was a good sportsman, 'I would have it a boundless prairie with an eternal September, and I'd have with me an everlasting gun and a never-dying dog.' He had Campbell's Indian's idea that his faithful dog should bear him company.'"

Gents:—Upon the recommendation of a friend I tried Brown's Iron Bitters as a tonic and restorative for my daughter, whom I was thoroughly convinced was wasting away with Consumption. Having lost three daughters by the terrible disease, under the care of eminent physicians, I was loth to believe that anything could arrest the progress of the disease, but, to my great surprise, before my daughter had taken one bottle of Brown's Iron Bittens, she began to mend and now is quite restored to former health. A fifth daughter began to show signs of Consumption, and when the physician was consulted he quickly said "Tonics were required;" and when informed that the elder sister was taking Brown's Iron Bittens, responded "that is a good tonic, take it."
